F. D. Breaks Precedent to Meet Him

By, By, Soldier—The 101st Field Artillery, Boston's own expeditionary force to Camp Edwards, leaves Commonwealth Armory today to the scattering cheers of the crowd... off by army truck for a year's training in war. Meanwhile, Boston's draft headquarters resumed the task of filling the second call quota.

HALIFAX ARRIVES ON NEW WARSHIP

F. D. Goes To Greet Halifax

By GEORGE DURNO

International News Service Staff Correspondent

EN ROUTE ANNAPOLIS WITH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, Jan. 24 (INS)—In a move that shattered diplomatic protocol, President Roosevelt today left Washington for Annapolis, Md., by motor to greet Lord Halifax, the new English Ambassador, personally when he disembarks from a British battleship this afternoon.

The Chief Executive's dramatic decision to greet the new envoy—instead of receiving him as provided by heretofore unviolated tradition—apparently stemmed from a desire to demonstrate to the world the closeness of Anglo-American ties.

The utmost secrecy cloaked both Mr. Roosevelt's plans and the arrival of the huge battleship, the new King George V. It was only when London made an official announcement earlier today that it was even known that Lord and Lady Halifax were bound for the United States.

Mrs. Roosevelt accompanied her husband to extend her personal welcome to Lady Halifax.

Not one word was uttered at the White House to disclose the President's plans and it was not until the motorcade had taken leave that it could be definitely said that the chief executive was on the way to Annapolis, 35 miles away, to meet the new diplomat. Never in the history of the nation, so far as can be learned, has a President deliberately violated the rigid protocol of international diplomacy to welcome a new envoy.

Even after the motor party had left for Annapolis, the White House still refused to say officially where Mr. Roosevelt was going, what he was going to do, or who was accompanying him.

ship King George V to take up his post in the United States.

It was not stated that Lord Halifax had actually landed but London afternoon newspapers said he would set foot on American soil during the day on his way to Washington.

It was understood in the British capital that Viscount Halifax had been scheduled to disembark probably at Norfolk, Virginia.

An Associated Press dispatch from Baltimore said the King George V passed the Chesapeake Bay capes at 7 a. m. today, and was expected to anchor off Annapolis about 2 or 3 p. m. The dispatch said the battleship would anchor off Annapolis in deep water where U. S. battleships lie to take Naval Academy midshipmen abroad for summer cruises.

International News Service reported from Solomon's Island, Md., that the King George V passed Cove Point lighthouse shortly after 1 p. m. It was estimated that the battleship, traveling at reduced speed because of Severn river, off Annapolis, to anchor, between 3 and 3:30 p. m.—Editor's Note.

RUMANIA IN REVOLT ROUNDUP

BUCHAREST, Jan. 24 (AP)—(passed by military censor)—Rumania's council of ministers in a special communique announced today severe punishment would be meted out to Horia Sima, vice-premier and Iron Guardist chief, and other alleged leaders of the bloody rebellion against the Antonescu government.

This was the first official allegation that Sima was involved in the disorders. The Bucharest radio reported the army now is searching for him and others among the rebellious leaders.

The Antonescu government, once again in control of this Rumanian capital in collaboration with German armed forces, ordered swift trials for the rebels and called on citizens to report nests of snipers.

Military courts were under orders to try those rounded up within 24 hours of arrest, with punishment

Shoes That Fit U. S. Army Motto; 90 Sizes on Hand

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24 (AP)—To give every soldier shoes of the proper size, each army camp, post or supply depot keeps in stock at least 90 different sizes. The regular stocks included lengths from 5 to 12, widths from A to EE, army officials said. Sometimes, however, the Army has to provide shoes as large as 16, and small as 4½.

Secret Quiz for 3 Army, Navy Chiefs In War Aid Clash

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24 (AP)—Amid Republican cries of "gag rule," the Democratic majority of the House Foreign Affairs committee today ordered the top-ranking officers of the Army, Navy and Air Corps to testify in secret instead of at public sessions on the Administration's aid-to-Britain bill.

First, there was an argument over the parliamentary situation; then the Democratic and the Republican committee members met separately to discuss secrecy vs. publicity, and finally Chairman Bloom (D.) of New York and Rep. Fish (R.) of New York, the minority spokesman, clashed angrily over the procedure ordered as the committee ended the hectic session for lunch.

Fish started the row by telling newsmen in Bloom's presence that a "practically unprecedented gag rule" had prevented him from making a motion for the appearance of the military and naval leaders.

FISH PLAN DEFEATED

"I deny it!" shouted Bloom. "There was no gag rule."

The decision was reached at a closed meeting of the majority after Republican members had refused to join in the discussion.

When the full committee reconvened, it agreed to recess until 1:30 p. m., after voting down, 13 to 10 on strictly party lines, an effort by Fish to have Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff; Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, and Maj. George H. Brett, acting chief of the Army Air Corps, testify in public.

Before this decision, Chairman Bloom issued the following statement:

"The full committee, in a prior executive session, had authorized Representative Fish, the ranking minority member, to invite whatever witnesses he wished 'as minority witnesses.' Representative Fish invited Admiral Stark, Gen. Marshall and Gen. Brett.

LETTERS REVEALED

"Subsequent to the invitations issued by Mr. Fish and after their names had been announced at Mr. Fish's request, the witnesses, in conversation with the chairman of the committee, asked whether or not the committee had invited them to appear as witnesses, to which the chairman replied that the committee had authorized Mr. Fish to invite such witnesses as he desired 'as minority witnesses.'"

"The witnesses suggested a committee invitation and stated they preferred to be heard in executive session."

Bloom also made public this text of a letter he said Marshall had written Fish:

"With reference to your invitation for me to appear before the foreign relations committee in connection with H. R. 1776, I was informed by the chairman of the committee last night that my presence had not been requested by the committee."

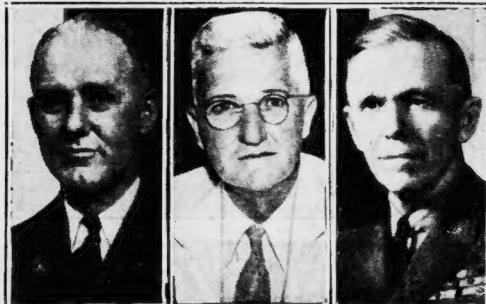

"In view of the fact that my testimony would be that of the chief of staff of the Army, rather than that of an individual, I

MRS. JOHN K. STRUBING (LEFT) AND NURSE
Mistrial Denied in Alleged Attack Case

POLICE ON STAND IN BUTLER ATTACK

BRIDGEPORT, Ct., Jan. 24—Police officers were called to day to substantiate the testimony of Mrs. Eleanor Strubing, Greenwich society matron, that she had been attacked by her Negro butler, Joseph Spell.

Patrolman Chester Pletschker of North Castle, N. Y., told the jury of six men and six women how he found Mrs. Strubing riding in the cab of a truck near Kensico reservoir on the morning of Dec. 11. "She was wet and shivering and nervous and excited," he said, relating that she had yelled "protect me, protect me," when she saw another Negro—not Spell—the morning after the attacks were said to have taken place.

Pletschker testified that Mrs. Strubing had told him she had been attacked four times instead of the three she indicated in her testimony yesterday.

Mrs. Strubing was excused from the witness stand following cross-examination yesterday by Defense Attorney Samuel E. Friedman at the height of which State's Atty. L. W. Willis charged Friedman with "tormenting" Mrs. Strubing.

Mrs. Strubing was followed by Dr. Francis G. Zeiler, White Plains, N. Y., physician to whose office she was brought after truckmen found her by a lonely Westchester County, N. Y., reservoir, into which she said Spell had hurled her to drown.

CONFIRMS ATTACK
Dr. Zeiler said a physical examination convinced him she had been forcibly attacked.

Mrs. Strubing immediately left the courtroom after she had finished her testimony, accompanied by her husband, John K. Strubing, Jr., New York advertising executive and one-time Princeton quarterback, and the private nurse who has attended her at the trial.

The doctor's testimony was followed by that of two truckmen, James Restel, of Great Barrington, Mass., said he first saw Mrs. Strubing before dawn of Dec. 11 standing on the road near the reservoir "waving and hollering."

He quoted her as saying, "a colored man was after her."

Police came up and took her to Dr. Zeiler's soon after, Restel said. The other truckman, Douglas Hurst, of Hawthorne, N. Y., merely described finding Mrs. Strubing's fur coat in the reservoir in which she said she had left it so that Spell would think she had drowned.

Mrs. Strubing, struggling to maintain her composure, told a cross-examiner the ordeal she underwent on a night last December when, she charges, she was attacked by Spell.

Over and over she repeated: "I was frightened to death and could hardly breathe."

Love Killer's Woes Mount on Birthday

Happy birthday . . . In all the years of her young life, no two words could have been so grimly ironical for Ruth Stanwood Steadman as these words were today.

For this was her 27th birthday anniversary. The body of the man she loved not wisely but too well was being buried in a Maine grave. And she was told for the first time that she stands accused of the capital crime of the "hopeless love" murder.

Atty. Edward Flynn of Tremont st. broke the news to the young blonde mother as gently as he could, for she had just recovered from collapsing after learning that her married sw e e t h e a r t , R o b e r t G. Emery of Natick, was dead —had been dead since Tuesday afternoon.

All through the night she had sobbed and moaned for "Bob," attendants at the Psychopathic Hospital said.

FATHER TELLS HER

Her father, Francis J. Standwood, Needham town official and clubman, had informed her what police had hitherto declined to tell—that a lethal potion of sleeping tablets, mixed with a glass of milk, and a rope twisted round Emery's neck had killed the 25-year-old rector.

It was Atty. Flynn's tragic duty to tell her something more today—that a warrant had been issued by Chief Justice F. Delano Patton of the municipal court charging that Emery was murdered, that murder was based on "strangulation and poisoning," and that she was named in the warrant as

AGED LYNN PAIR KILLED BY FUMES

An aged Lynn couple were asphyxiated in their home in Orange ct., Lynn, today and within minutes of the tragic discovery crews of gas company employees were digging in the streets in the vicinity in an attempt to find a leak in the main.

The victims were William R. Thomas, 69, and his wife, Gertrude, 68. Police said that the couple had no gas service in the house, but that Thomas was felled by fumes in the kitchen. His wife's body was in an upstairs bedroom. Both were clothed.

Mrs. Anne Kevill, living across the street, first reported to police that she smelled fumes. Fire department rescue squad members worked with police to revive the Thomas couple, but in vain.

The victims are survived by a daughter, Mrs. Mildred H. Hurd, also of Lynn, according to police.

Cuttyhunk Girl, 6, Only Pupil Left In Island School

CUTTYHUNK, Jan. 24 (AP)—Without any question, 6-year-old Janet Ricketson is in a class by herself.

When the grammar school on this Buzzards Bay island opened in the fall there were eight pupils. Then winter came and most of the children moved to the mainland.

Sally and Charles Tilton have just come down with the whooping cough, so the only ones left in school are Janet and Teacher Louise Taylor.

Clipper With Willkie Aboard in Lisbon

LISBON, Jan. 24 (INS)—The clipper carrying Wendell L. Willkie, who is en route to England, arrived in Lisbon at 11:52 a. m. today.

The last leg of the transatlantic crossing was made on schedule after bad weather had held up the Pan-American flying boat 24 hours in the Azores. From Lisbon, Willkie will fly to England.

Dawes Name Given To Deer Island Post

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24 (AP)—A companion of Paul Revere on his famous ride and a noted Confederate cavalry general were honored today when the War Department gave their names to two new Army posts.

Ft. Dawes, a military reservation at Deer Island, Mass., was named for William Dawes, a fellow messenger with Paul Revere.

The name of Camp Pay near Tullahoma, Tenn., was changed to Camp Forrest after Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest, the Confederate cavalry general, famous for his admonition to "get there fastest with the mostest men."

"I'M GOING TO LOSE 20 POUNDS"

By MARY X. SULLIVAN

Up betimes, and into that fetching ensemble, including my inner-tube girdle, to wrestle afresh with King Compulence. At this point I'd even place a small wager on myself to win.

But I'd better make that a show bet, for although I felt practically sylphlike, the scales told me that with all my good behavior . . . and my virtue amazes me . . . I have lost only a scant half-pound.

Well, a half-pound lost is a half-pound earned, to paraphrase an old saw. And I am earning every ounce!

As I told you yesterday, I'm improving rapidly in my exercise technique. I've actually mastered the knee-squeeze. That's the one in which you lie on your back and try to bring your knee up to your chin.

SO ENERGETIC

I practiced it at home (I am feeling so energetic these mornings that I actually have done some of my tricks without an instructor standing over me) and proudly demonstrated to Mrs. Alexander that I can now touch my chin.

The exercises I do lying face down are supposed to take a reef in the tummy, and I certainly hope they do, because I can think of a lot of pleasanter pursuits.

STATE CARELESSNESS HIT IN FATAL CRASH

WORCESTER, Jan. 24 (AP)—Police Chief Charles E. Braman, Jr., of Auburn today scored State highway officials for failure to sand an icy stretch of highway in that town last night where a Middletown, Ct., man was killed and four other persons were injured in a two-car collision.

He said:

"The condition of the highway covered with glare ice for 400 feet was emphatically to blame for the accident. In my opinion there can be no excuse for the negligence on the part of the public works department because the scene of the accident is notoriously a bad section."

Joseph M. Lucey, 22, of Middletown died this morning of a skull fracture and internal injuries. John Ryzack, 21, is in critical condition with internal and head injuries. Edward Birdely, 21, has an arm and possible skull fracture. Both are from Middletown and are named on the St. Vincent Hospital danger list.

All were riding together. A Worcester man and his wife in the other car were hurt less seriously.

Auditors Check Boston's Petty Cash

Twenty members of the city auditor's force, when they reported for duty today, were instructed to report immediately to the chief clerk of the department.

The men were instructed to make a complete audit of 27 city departments having petty cash accounts. These accounts range generally from $20 to $1000. The City Hospital has a petty cash account of $2000.

Although City Auditor Charles J. Fox insisted there was nothing unusual in the order, he admitted such an extraordinary audit had never before been ordered in the 6 years he has headed the auditor's office.

In the past the petty cash has been included in the general audit. It is known that Mayor Tobin, however, has had a group of auditors assisting for several months in a complete survey of the city's financial structure and that such surveys may take place more frequently in the future.

Slew 3d Hubby, Quizzed in Killing of 4th

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., Jan. 24 (AP)—Chief of Police M. J. O'Rourke said today Mrs. Lue Burns, 38, was being held for questioning in connection with the fatal shooting of her husband, John Burns, 45, jewelry establishment owner.

Mrs. Burns was quoted as saying the shooting last night followed an argument over her husband's failure to bring home some new clothes which had been delivered at the jewelry store for her.

O'Rourke said police records showed Mrs. Burns, who has been married four times, shot her third husband, Shelby Clay, at their home in Madison, Ill., about 10 years ago. A verdict of justifiable homicide was returned after evidence was introduced showing that Clay had attacked her with a butcher knife.

Brockton Man Killed by Fall

Skull fractured, bones in both arms and both legs broken, the body of 79-year-old Herbert French, retired Brockton farmer, was found beneath the second-story bedroom window of his home in West Chestnut st. today.

He had been dead for nearly 12 hours, Medical Examiner F. H. Leavitt declared, after an autopsy. The body was discovered by Mrs. Walter C. Hardy, a neighbor.

Mrs. Nellie Mahoney, French's housekeeper, was still asleep when police were called. She told them French had gone to bed about 6 o'clock last night complaining of not feeling well. Police believe the aged man arose to close a window and lost his balance.

Northeaster On Way to Hub

Get the snow shovel out of the cellar and the overcoats out of the closet—there's a northeaster on the way, with snow, rain and sleet, and the temperature down to 25 degrees.

The weather bureau this afternoon ordered storm warning hoisted along the coast from Portsmouth, N. H., to Block Island. Increasing cloudiness will be followed by snow tonight, changing to sleet, and freezing rain tomorrow. Moderate winds from the northeast tonight will become stronger Saturday, shifting to the east and southeast.

Precipitation will be "moderate to heavy," the forecast says.

CHENG STAND IN SURGERY TRIAL

Taking the stand today to open his own defense, Dr. En-sang Cheng, in Middlesex superior court, testified the mother of the missing 17-year-old Catherine Dulong of Woburn once asked his aid in preventing her from again becoming a mother.

But he told Mrs. Dulong he was "not interested," testified Dr. Cheng, who is a trial with Henry J. McCue, Woburn florist, on a charge of conspiring to commit illegal surgery involving the missing Catherine gone now for 16 months.

Dr. Cheng was the first witness following close of the government's case and said he lived in West st., Reding, and had a Boston office in Tyler st., South End.

TELLS OF HER VISIT

Born in Hawaii, he said, he was graduated from the University of California and has been practicing medicine in this state since 1909. He was examined in direct testimony by his counsel, Anthony De-Cecca.

Q—Do you know Mrs. Dulong? A—Yes.

Q—When was the first time you met Mrs. Dulong? A—About two years ago.

Q—What was the purpose of her visit to you? A—Mrs. Dulong said she was to become a mother and asked me if I could do something about it because she had too many children. I said to her, "I am not interested."

The doctor said he next saw Mrs. Dulong in 1931 some time after Labor Day, when she called at his home with McCue, whom the doctor had never seen before.

TELLS OF GIRL'S VISIT

Q—Of the two, which addressed you first? A—Mrs. Dulong. She asked me if I could find out what the trouble was with her daughter. I said I would be glad to if she would come with her. McCue said, "She's been treated by another doctor." I said, "What's the matter?" McCue said, "I don't know."

Q—As a result of the conversation, did Mrs. Dulong agree to take her up to your home? A—She did.

Q—Did you, at any time, talk privately to McCue? A—No, sir.

Q—Did Catherine Dulong come to your home? A—Yes.

Q—Was her mother with her? A—No.

It was brought out that a couple of days elapsed until Catherine was taken to Dr. Cheng's home by McCue and, in view of the fact that the mother was not along, the doctor merely took the girl's case history.

Earlier in today's session, as the government's case drew to a close, Mrs. Mildred Granville of Union st., Peabody, who formerly lived in the same Woburn house with the Dulong, testified that she saw Catherine go into the doctor's home on the night of Sept. 19, 1939—and has never seen her since.

GIRL REMAINED THERE

The witness said she waited outside in the car for about an hour. Then McCue and Mrs. Dulong came out and they drove home.

Q—Did Catherine come out? A—No.

Q—Have you ever seen Catherine again? A—No.

Dr. Arthur T. Herlig of Wood-cliff rd., Newton Highland, professor of pathology at Harvard and associated with the Boston Lying-In Hospital and the Free Hospital for Women, was called to the stand.

Hauptmann Judge Retires

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 24 (AP)—Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, 71-year-old New Jersey Supreme Court jurist who sentenced Bruno Richard Hauptmann to the electric chair, retired today.

In ill health for several years, the white-haired justice said, "I figure I'm entitled to a rest now."

He had been appointed to the court in 1906.

Hauptmann, a carpenter from the Bronx, was arrested in Flemington, N. J., Feb. 13, 1935, as the killer of baby Charles Lindbergh, Jr.

Bomb Armory Threat Stirs Cambridge

A gruffly-voiced threat to "blow up" the Cambridge Armory in which 100 soldiers were sleeping brought quick action by aroused Army officers today.

A cordon of 24 armed sentries was posted around the building in Massachusetts ave. and the men were told to give intruders the treatment they could expect in wartime.

The sentries through the night chased down even the most plausible noises and disturbances.

Admitting the anonymous voice telephoning the threat was probably that of a prankster, Army officers took every precaution against an untoward incident.

The night passed without sign of trouble, however, and the 100 soldiers, all federalized National Guardsmen, slumbered peacefully. They are members of Companies D, F and M of the 101st Infantry, slated to leave for duty at Camp Edwards over the week-end.

The threat was received at Boston police headquarters and relayed to Cambridge police, who in turn notified Lieut. Frederick Marden in charge of the armory.

NOVELIST OXENHAM DIES

Well, Mike Tried To See School Team Play, Anyway

DURHAM, Ct., Jan. 24 (AP)—They can't say Mike Forline didn't try to get into town to watch his high school team play basketball.

Mike borrowed his brother's car to go to the game, but the car skidded into another, damaging both. Then he parked in a restricted area and received a ticket. When the policeman asked for his license, Mike had left it home, so he had to drive back 14 miles to get it.

When he returned to the school, the game was over.

Draft Officials Put Rain Priest On Deferred List

GALLUP, N. M., Jan. 24 (AP)—Albert, 26-year-old Zuni Indian rain priest, has been given a deferred classification under selective service.

Fellow tribesmen pleaded that Albert's services were needed to bring rain not only for their semi-arid western New Mexico reservation, but for the whole world.

The draft board held the rain priest was entitled to the same consideration given ministers of other religions.

Search Pushed for 3 Malden Suspects

Their search for three companions of the defendant vain so far, Malden police today were granted another continuance in the case of Alphonse Lavagna, 31, accused in the near-fatal beating of Angelo DiChiara, 24, of Malden, a fortnight ago.

Lavagna, who lives in Fenwick st., Malden, was released by Malden court on bail of $5000 until Feb. 7. Police charge that he and three others beat DiChiara with a hammer in the latter's tobacco shop in Salem st. as a result of a number pool argument. Chain Gang Author's Extradition Asked

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 24 (AP)—Gov. Charles Edison said today he would "study carefully" a request for the extradition to Georgia of Robert Elliott Burns, author of "I Am a Fugitive From a Chain Gang."

A formal request for Burns' removal to Georgia arrived today from Gov. Eugene Talmadge. Edison declined to augment his comment on the Burns case, other than to say that "there's a lot of correspondence to be read in the files."

Salem and Arlington Get Stamp Food

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24 (AP)—The Agricultural Department announced today its stamp plan for distributing surplus food among needy families would be extended in about a month to the city of Salem and town of Arlington, Mass.

Marlene's Pants Fad Is Overdone

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 24 (AP)—Marlene Dietrich has just about concluded some women have carried to extremes the fad she originated—that of females roving around in male attire.

"When I started wearing men's trousers," said the German-born actress with large, wistful eyes and long curvaceous legs, "I never dreamed the fad would spread to such universal proportions."

"I think that, for ease and comfort, trousers or slacks are the finest addition any girl can have to her wardrobe. But a girl has got to have height and figure to make the best appearance in them."

"It actually makes me shudder when I see fat, squat women waddling around in slacks."

"They wear them in the streets and even in hotel dining rooms—and just about everywhere else where they are out of place."

"But then, that's the type of woman who, if attired in a skirt, would wear the wrong one at any occasion."

Miss Dietrich wears old-fashioned gowns in her new film role as a petite Southern belle in "The Flame of New Orleans."

"Now I think these are very pretty, indeed," she said, lifting her long, flowing early-American dress a few inches and exhibiting the dainty ruffles of her long, white pantaloons.

"But I certainly hope nobody gets 'pants-conscious' to the extent they start going around in things like these."

ARTILLERY OF YD RUMBLES OVER ROADS TO CAPE CAMP

Over the long, winding roads between Boston, Brockton, New Bedford and Falmouth today, the rumble of artillery sounded as more units of the 26th (Yankee) Division departed for the year of military training at Camp Edwards. And the saddest youth in Boston was Pvt. James Reeves, 24, of Channing circle, Cambridge, dropped from the 180th Field Artillery, as he stood at Commonwealth Armory and watched the troops roll away.

Reeves was turned down for further service by the medical board because of his teeth. There is hope for him to rejoin his outfit, however, if he gets together with his dentist.

With State, city and army police co-operating in patrolling the roads, the longest motor caravan of the YD rolled into Camp Edwards shortly after noon.

FIVE-MILE CARAVAN

Converging from Boston, Brockton and New Bedford, the line of 95 trucks, carrying 56 officers and 710 men, together with their guns, was more than five miles long.

It consisted of motor groups of the 51st Field Artillery Brigade, Headquarters Co. and Cos. A, B and C of the 101st Field Artillery.

Col. Charles L. Furber was in command of the caravan. At the intersection of Routes 128 and 138, Co. F of Taunton, Co. E of Brockton and Co. D of New Bedford joined the Boston troops.

With farewells said during the week since induction of the national guardsmen into federal service, today's departures were attended by only a thin audience at Commonwealth Armory, where Brig.-Gen. William F. Howe of the 51st Artillery Brigade was in command.

Meanwhile, the East Newton armory was stripped down to the bare necessities as the 101st Infantry also prepared to leave for Camp Edwards by train under Col. Paul G. Kirk.

Under the schedule, the First Battalion under Capt. Edward Hickey, was the first to leave the South Station.

Tomorrow another large troop movement takes place when the 18th Infantry is scheduled to arrive at Fort Devens. The contingent will be quartered in the new First Division housing area.

Meanwhile at Devens, hundreds of selectees left that reservation for various forts and camps throughout New England, among them 14 Bay State men transferred to Camp Edwards and 10 to Fort Preble, Me.

13 MORE NEEDED

Draft officials here said only 13 more men were needed to complete the January induction quota of 984. The latest three replacements, they reported, were non volunteers from Milton, James Cassini, William F. Lyons and Warren J. Allan.

It also was announced that 55 flying cadets will leave Feb. 11 from the new recruiting station on Columbus ave. for the Barr Aero Technic College, Inc., a school under government contract at Albany, Ga.

A highlight in the life of the Yankee Division will come Feb. 6 when Lieut. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, commanding the First Army, is scheduled to make a two-day inspection tour at Camp Edwards.

When Gen. Drum arrives he will be met by Gen. Eckfeldt and a picked military escort, and will be received with a salute of 15 guns.

By that time it is expected that the entire division will be engaged in routine training, with numerous schools in operation, and a colorful dress parade each evening at 5:15 o'clock.

Gen. Eckfeldt has announced that no time will be lost in starting the work at which the division is to be engaged for months to come.

Bomb Snuffer Is Latest for British Housewives

LONDON, Jan. 24 (AP)—The newest war gadget being offered to housewives is the "bomb snuffer."

It looks something like a dishpan upside down and is used for fighting incendiary bombs.

A housewife who finds an incendiary on her front stoop simply hooks a snuffer on a long pole and lowers it over the bomb. The missile is smothered in a dropped automatically.

PVT. ROCKEFELLER — His duffle bag slung over his back, Winthrop Rockefeller, scion of the great old family, arrives at Camp Dix in "full dress" . . . all set to begin a year of training.

POPE'S NIECE IS BRIDE

BAY STATE 'RAIDERS' REPULSED

Six raids by "enemy" bombers were repulsed by air defense forces in Massachusetts and Connecticut today as the four-day test of aircraft warning facilities was coming to a close.

Five wings were scored by the defenders after "dog-fights" and a sixth group of raiders was chased back to sea before attaining its objective.

Outstanding "interception" was theoretical downing of a bomber squadron near Fitchburg as the "enemy" roared toward the industrial Merrimack Valley cities of Lowell, Lawrence and Haverhill.

Other "victories" were scored over Boston, north of Wilmington, off Scituate shores and over Groton, Ct. The blocked raid was an attempt to swing in over the Boston harbor channel.

Meanwhile, Gen. T. A. Terry, commanding officer of the First Coast Artillery District, declared that Boston and the Eastern seaboard are vulnerable to air invasion and in urgent need of more seaplanes, airports and anti-aircraft batteries.

Gen. Terry made his statement while inspecting the New England Air Defense Center at Chelsea Armory and also declared the New York area was likewise vulnerable.

Fund Campaign Hits Total of $1,993,211

An official total of $1,993,211 was announced today at the third "Dutch Treat" report luncheon of the Greater Boston Community Fund Campaign in the Chamber of Commerce, 80 Federal st.

The official report was of considerable interest because of the warning issued by Guild after the luncheon on Wednesday that the 25,000 volunteer solicitors would have to strive to maintain the high level of work performed in previous campaigns if the goal of $4,883,000 is to be achieved by Feb. 5.

Led by Superintendent Arthur L. Gould, teachers in the Boston Public schools are flocking over the top in a fine example of community spirit, it was announced early today by Michael J. Galvin, chairman of the Public Employees Division.

Hub Students Sought by Navy

Rear Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, former commander of the Asiatic squadron and recently recalled to active duty in the Navy, arrived in Boston today in a campaign to enroll 1000 engineering students in the Naval Reserve.

Rear Admiral Yarnell, with five other officers, will visit M. I. T. and Northeastern University in the hope of interesting seniors and juniors to enroll as reserve officers. The Navy chief said students accepted from engineering schools would be commissioned as Reserve Ensigns, upon graduation. From there they would be called to active service and placed in vital naval shipbuilding and airplane construction plants.

The Rear Admiral said that because of the shortage of trained engineers and technicians in the Navy, the student campaign was launched following conferences with Navy Department officials.

Aid Cut Will Ease Taxes in Cambridge

Approval of a proposal to strike $300,000 from welfare department funds in the 1941 Cambridge budget has been voted by the Cambridge Taxpayers' Ass'n. It was announced today as city officials pondered ways to prevent a tax rate exceeding $50.

Paul Frank, executive secretary, stated association also had voted not to oppose any attempt at a later date to borrow the money if it should be needed by the department.

The action was taken, Frank said, to ease the threat of an increase of at least $10 in the tax rate. It is estimated that $170 will be saved by striking the $300,000 from the budget.

Decision to approve the welfare fund cut was arrived at following a recent statement of James Finnegan, welfare department director, that the relief load was declining as the result of a pickup in private employment.

The largest municipal headache in the state was being shared by Cambridge City Councilors as they faced a tax rate boost or moratorium on payment of more than $1,000,000 obligations.

What's more, the councilors learned their police cars in the opinion of Chief Leahy are "useless and unfit for pursuit," the City Hospital is "in a bad way," and the 7-year-old city ambulance is "like the famous Portland st. fire truck and will probably fall apart in the street some day."

City Auditor John J. McKenzie pointed out at the Council's budget hearing that debt retirement facing the city this year totals $2,124,000, an increase of $510,000 over last year.

N. Y. Defenders 'Down' 4 Planes

NEW YORK, Jan. 21 (AP).—Four "enemy" aircraft were "shot down" today as an attempted attack on bombers against the New York industrial area was repulsed in the fourth—and last—day of the Army's test of its air defense command raid warning system.

Civilian observers reported two formations of "invading" craft over Riverhead and Eastport, Long Island.

Within four minutes fighter planes from Mitchell Field had intercepted the "enemy" flights and reported them downed.

"It looks as if the observers were right on the job and that four bombers actually were seen," directing Army Corps officers said, "even though the two enemy formations were flying quite closely together and gave the impression that there was only one formation of two bombers in that area."

HEROISM SAVES 350 IN FIRE

Heroism of rescuers and bravery of 350 adults trapped by fire on the third floor of the Shattuck block in Wellesley Square was credited today with preventing one of the worst tragedies in the history of the State.

Had the fire burned undetected for five minutes more, authorities doubted the mass rescue of 300 women in evening clothes and 50 men in tuxedos over ladders and a rear fire escape could have been accomplished without mishap.

SHOUT OF "FIRE!"

The nightmare of finding themselves trapped by a general alarm fire which ate through the front entrance and main exit of the block was shared by guests and officers from Greater Boston and the South Shore attending installation ceremonies of the Wellesley Chapter, Order of Eastern Star.

It was at the climax of the ceremonies, while Mrs. Mary F. McGoldrick of Medford, grand matron, was being escorted through rows of cheering men and women, that the cry of "fire!" was heard.

Then, as smoke poured into the big hall and panic drove couples toward the only exit in the rear, the strained cries of Worthy Matron Mrs. Hazel F. Murray were heard above the din.

"Listen to me, listen to me. Everyone can get out safely if we file two by two and go down the fire escape. Everything will be all right if we don't lose our heads!"

In a few moments a 75-foot fire ladder crashed through a window, to be joined quickly by two more propped up to rear windows from an adjacent roof in Washington st.

With police, firemen and volunteers guiding them, the men and women climbed down ladders and felt their way along the fire escape to the welcome street level.

For ten minutes with hardly a scream and a few muttered words of cheer, the group in long files were handed downwards to the street and the adjoining rooftop.

Only then, with little groups clustered in the freezing cold and being handed wraps by firemen who cleared out the costrooms, did firemen turn their efforts to checking the blaze.

A hasty check disclosed that among those rescued were two children, Virginia Dole, 12, and Betty Olson, 10, both of Wellesley, and a blind man, Alfred Gifford of Plymouth.

Skilled Labor Shortage Seen

The State's skilled labor shortage will continue during the current year, Gov. Saltonstall was told in a report by the Massachusetts Industrial Committee.

The committee, headed by John F. Tinsley and appointed last May by the Governor, to conduct a survey of labor, plants and payrolls, also reported payroll increases ranging from 7 1/2 to 400 per cent.

Sixty per cent of the plants reported a skilled labor shortage of 7 per cent anticipate such a shortage throughout the year. Increased industrial space was taken over by 23 per cent, while 18 per cent made known similar plans. The State has received $1,000,000 in defense contracts, Tinsley also reported.

2 WOMEN HELD IN $135 MYSTERY

In the matter of the two ladies, one twice and other thrice married, and the alleged disappearance of $135 belonging to Robert Gonsalves, 45, of West Springfield st., Back Bay, there was much ado but no decision in municipal court today.

Charged with the larceny were Mrs. Marion Pearl Laird, 40, of the Hotel Gresham, South End, whose third and current husband is a Boston police officer, and Mrs. Inez St. Clair, 30, of Grimshaw st., Malden, whose second marriage is only one month old.

Both women pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Judge Jennie L. Barron and were held in $500 each for hearing Jan. 31.

According to Special Officer James F. Hanley, Gonsalves told police it all came about when he made the acquaintance of the two women in a Dover st. cafe.

Hanley said Gonsalves, who had recently received a substantial settlement in an accident case, went to the restaurant, where he was waited on by Mrs. St. Clair.

He became friendly with her and she introduced Mrs. Laird. At closing time the two women allegedly invited Gonsalves to Mrs. Laird's hotel room for a party.

According to police, Gonsalves reported he had one drink and the next thing he remembers the two women were handing him his hat and coat and informing him the party was over.

On reaching his home, Gonsalves, police said, missed $135. He rushed to Station 4, reported his misfortune, and Special Officers Hanley, Harvey Yates and Patrick Keane took the women into custody.

They not only denied the charge, but Mrs. St. Clair added her husband didn't know of the situation and she was quite worried about what his reaction would be.

65 Billion Debt Limit Bill Filed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24 (AP)—Chairman Doughton (D.) of North Carolina, of the House Ways and Means Committee, introduced legislation today to raise the federal debt limit to $65,000,000. The current debt is $45,163,856,577.

Doughton announced that public hearings on the measure would start Wednesday, with Secretary Morgenthau as the first witness.

Former Klan Wizard Fined for Conspiracy

ATLANTA, Jan. 24 (AP)—Hiram Wesley Evans, former imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, and three refining companies were fined a total of $30,000 in federal court today for conspiracy and monopoly in the sale of emulsified asphalt to the state.

Evans, who had entered a plea of nolo, was fined $15,000. District Judge E. Marvin Underwood also assessed $4000 fines against the Emulsified Asphalt Refining Co. at Charlestown, S. C.; $5000 against the Shell Oil Co., Inc., of St. Louis, and $5000 against the American Bitumuls Co. of San Francisco, on like counts.

Mother, Trapped By Train, Uninjured; Girl Hurt in Leap

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 24 (AP)—A 20-year-old girl and her mother, walking across a railroad trestle last night, were trapped by an oncoming freight train.

The girl, Romayne Cafferty, chose to leap into a shallow stream 62 feet below.

The mother, Mrs. Catherine Cafferty, 51, murmuring a prayer, flattened herself on the ties, hoping that the train would pass over safely.

The engineer stopped the locomotive a few feet from the mother. The daughter suffered a back injury.

West Roxbury Wife Wins Divorce by K.O. Tale

Her reward for helping her intoxicated husband into bed, Mrs. Emma Thompson of Spring st., West Roxbury, testified today in probate court, was to have him knock her unconscious.

Mrs. Thompson was awarded a divorce on grounds of cruel and abusive treatment and gross and confirmed habits of intoxication. Also she was awarded custody of the 5-year-old daughter, Jean, and $7 a week.

The witness said she was married July 10, 1927, in New York, and that Thompson now is living in Calumet st., Roxbury, and is a WPA foreman.

"I see you were optimistic when you married him," commented Judge Robert Gardner Wilson, Jr., "he was out of work at that time, according to the marriage certificate."

Mrs. Thompson replied that at the time of the marriage he had just been laid off by the Elevated.

She said her husband once came home very intoxicated and turned on all the gas jets and when she turned them off he struck her on the top of the head.

To her knowledge, she said, he has been arrested between 15 and 20 times for intoxication.

ELSIE ROBINSON, discusses the woman's viewpoint, discusses everyday affairs and problems, regularly in the Boston American.

4 WIVES, 1 HUBBY DIVORCED

Everett Zola—he was her husband—served her with the bill, right, but the pot came with it. Mrs. Harriett Granberg Zola of Blue Hill ave., Mattapan, testified today in probate court in winning a divorce.

She left Zola, she told Judge Robert Gardner Wilson, Aug. 28 after he had hung a coat-hanger on her lip from across the room and one of her teeth had been broken.

"He was a very bright boy, but he had a temper," she said somberly.

Mrs. Zola explained that Everett was an advertising man, but he was addicted to "reds" and the houses, and as a result they were always behind in their bills.

Mrs. Caroline Souza Mello Dew of Tremont st., Roxbury, discarded Francis Dew, a Cambridge laborer, after testifying he beat her up and choked her.

One of these occasions, she said, was when he stayed out all night and upon arrival home "got mad before I could get mad first." He threw her on the bed, she testified, and choked her. She won her decree.

Lipscomb was a high color in the marital life of Gertrude A. Hennessy of North Russell st., West End, and Robert G. Hennessy, she testified in divorcing him.

Every time he went out, she said, he came back with lipstick on his shirt, and once she found in his pocket a pair of lady's gloves.

Mrs. Hennessy, a nurse at Massachusetts General Hospital, said she eventually found four rivals with whom he was keeping trysts.

Considerable of the testimony given by Mrs. Virginia Swan of Chestnut st., Roxbury, in obtaining a divorce from Charles F. Swan, a Charlestown roofer, was whispered at Judge Wilson's bench.

After that the judge granted the decree and awarded her $25 a week toward support of the three children.

She testified Swan conducted himself improperly in front of the children, was cruel and abusive, failed to support her and drank heavily.

Theodore Zambella of Albany st., South End, a bartender, obtained a divorce from Florence Zambella, to whom he was married less than a year.

Once she hit him with a flying pan, he testified, and on one occasion she entered his place of business with a man whom she introduced as her boy friend.

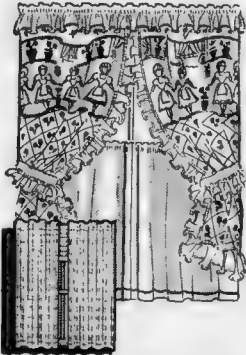

They're Trainees Or Selectees— Not Draftees

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24 (AP)—Men inducted into the Army through the selective service either are "trainees" or "selectees" as far as the War Department is concerned, rather than "draftees." Officials said today that although no formal order had been issued governing use of the designations, the general staff had a definite distaste for the term "draft" or any variations thereof.

GIRL FOILS HANDBAG THIEF

A pretty South Boston girl, walking home from classes at a secretarial school, was slugged and thrown to the sidewalk today after she foiled a thief's attempt to seize her handbag.

The attack, similar to two earlier thefts in Roxbury, occurred as Miss Pauline Baskiewicz, 22, had nearly arrived at her home in Ward st., South Boston.

After striking her about the head her assailant shoved her to the ground in anger when she refused to release her grip on her purse. The man, about 25 years old, leaped a fence and disappeared in the direction of Vinton st., South Boston, as Miss Baskiewicz started screaming for help.

WOUND AT HOSPITAL

She was removed to City Hospital and held for treatment of head lacerations and concussion.

During the night, two Roxbury women were victims of a thief of the same description. Mrs. Geraldine Ford, 28, of Catawba st., Roxbury, was robbed of a bag containing $16.

Mrs. Beatrice Kalack, 33, of Dudley st., Roxbury, was robbed as she started to cross Washington st. Ruggles st. The thief shoved her as he grabbed her purse containing $13.

SUSPECT HELD

At the Dudley st. station, meanwhile, police questioned a mild-mannered, 30-year-old man taker into custody by Sgt. Thomas Gavin and Patrolmen William Killy and Arthur Reeves in connection with a recent series of house breaks.

Police disclosed that the man admitted several breaks and a number of handbag thefts, although for 16 years he has held a position of trust in the shipping department of a Boston lead concern.

SLUGGED—Walking home from classes at a secretarial school, Pauline Baskiewicz, 22, was slugged and thrown to the sidewalk near her Ward st., South Boston, home, today after foiling a thief's attempt to seize her handbag. She was taken to City Hospital.

Girl Cashier Fights Restaurant Bandits

Give Miss Marie Trainor, 22, a big hand—and she would be a champion bandit-router, according to police today.

As it was, the plucky cashier of H. P. Hood's downtown Hawley st. restaurant, managed to save $75 in company money after struggling separately with two hold-up men who fled with five money bags containing $500. Besides, she furnished descriptions to officers seeking the two armed men and their accomplice.

"I became so frightened I Marie Trainor didn't know what to do except start fighting," Miss Trainor, of Hamilton st., Dorchester said.

"I guess my kicking surprised and upset them, because they dropped one of the money bags on the street."

While one bandit waited in a stolen car parked in an alley between Hawley and Arch sts., the other two, one masked, entered through a rear door and confronted the cashier.

The girl, carrying six money bags, was descending the rear steps from the main floor to the alley entrance, apparently on her way to a bank, when she was confronted by the bandit, a slightly built youth, wearing a handkerchief across his face as a mask and a brown suede jacket.

Braten by the bandit in a brief but furious struggle, Miss Trainor managed to wrench one of the money bags containing $75, from her assailant's arms as he fled into the alley and leaped into the waiting car, a large gray coupe reported stolen from an India st. garage earlier in the day.

16 Dr. Hutchins Holds War Entry Would Be Suicidal for Nation

CHICAGO, Jan. 24 (AP)—Dr. Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, today had asserted that he believed "the American people are about to commit suicide" by drifting into a war for which they are "morally and intellectually unprepared."

"The conclusion is inescapable," he said, "that the President is reconciled to active military intervention, if such intervention is needed to defeat the Axis in this war."

SUPPORTED F. R. "I have supported Mr. Roosevelt since he first went to the White House. I have never questioned his integrity or his good will. But under the pressure of great responsibilities, in the heat of controversy, in the international game of bluff, the President's speeches and recommendations are committing us to obligations abroad which we cannot perform.

SPEAKS AS CITIZEN

"The effort to perform them will prevent the achievement of the aims for which the President stands at home."

Dr. Hutchins emphasized that in this, his "first public questioning" of President Roosevelt, he was speaking "simply as an American citizen," and that he wished to dissociate himself from "all Nazis, Fascists and appeasers," because "I regard the doctrine of all totalitarian regimes as wrong in theory, evil in execution and incompatible with the rights of man. I wish to dissociate myself from those who want us to stay out of war to save our own skins or our own property. National selfishness should not determine national policy."

"We are told," he went on, "that we are going to have to fight the Axis sometime. Why not fight it now, when we have Britain to help us?"

"We cannot assume," he submitted, "that any combination of powers can successfully invade this hemisphere if we are prepared to defend ourselves and determine to be free."

WAR OUTLOOK GLOOMY

"The chances of accomplishing the high moral purpose which the President has stated for America, even if we stay out of war, are not bright, but we have a chance to help humanity if we do not go into this war. If we do go into it, we have no chance at all."

"The reason why we have no chance to help humanity if we go into this war is that we are not prepared. I do not mean, primarily, that we are unprepared in a military sense. I mean that we are morally and intellectually unprepared to execute the moral mission to which the President calls us."

"If we stay out of war, we may perhaps some day understand and practice freedom of speech, freedom of worship, freedom from want, and freedom from fear. We may even be able to comprehend and support justice, democracy, the moral order, and the supremacy of human rights. Today we have barely begun to grasp the meaning of the words."

"The four freedoms must be abandoned if they interfere with winning a war," he declared.

PAINTS BLACK FUTURE

"If we go to war, we cast away our opportunity and cancel our gains. For a generation, perhaps for a hundred years, we shall not be able to struggle back to where we were."

"Education will cease. Its place will be taken by vocational and military training."

"In the meantime," he suggested, "we should begin to make this country a refuge of those who will not live without liberty. For less than the cost of two battleships we could accommodate half a million refugees from totalitarian countries for a year. . . . These victims, unlike battleships, would contribute to our industry and our cultural life, and help us make democracy work."

TAKING WRONG PATH

Asserting that "the path to war is a false path to freedom," Dr. Hutchins said:

"The government of Great Britain has repeatedly refused to state its war aims. The President in his foreign policy is pledged to back up Great Britain, and beyond that, to the pursuit of the unattainable. If we go to war we shall not know what we are fighting for."

"We are turning aside from the true path to freedom because it is easier to blame Hitler for our troubles than to fight for democracy at home. As Hitler made the Jews his scapegoat, so we are making Hitler ours."

From the lips of Canada's own wounded air heroes now comes the great story of England's defense in Austen Lake's new series, "THE RAF WOUNDED SPEAK." Thrilling first-hand stories of the war in the air begin in MONDAY'S BOSTON AMERICAN.

BUDGET DETAILS DUE TODAY

Details of Gov. Sisson's budget proposals and bond issue request were being awaited with interest today by legislators and taxpayers' groups following sharp criticism by Rep. John E. Troy, Democratic floor leader in the House.

"Does this state want to give up its 'pay-as-you-go' policy?" Troy demanded after the Governor, at a press conference, disclosed the possibility of two additional bond issues this year.

The two issues, it was indicated, would be in addition to two others sought in the Governor's budget message.

"They would cover possible legislation providing for the state to take over East Boston airport for defense purposes and for the state to increase the number of piers it now controls at Boston harbor."

No figures were given, but a breakdown of the recommended appropriations was expected hourly, for Budget Commr. Charles Greenough worked on the tables far into the night in order to have them ready.

No provision was made in the budget for an increase in the salaries of legislators. When this was called to the Governor's attention, he said that the budget merely included appropriations for the present legislation.

"I am positive businessmen and industrialists will not look with favor on an increased state debt when the government, in returning for national defense must increase the federal debt."

One of these is the back kick—a nifty little step. You kick as high and as hard as you can, first right, then left, then with both legs together. It reminds me of those modern dance groups.

Another new exercise, still lying flat on my face, is the one in which Mrs. A. holds my ankles pinned to the table while I try to sit up straight, bending the wrong way, if you know what I mean. You can do it by looking your heels under the dresser. However, if the dresser falls over on you don't sue me.

I haven't gone skating again, but hope to find time to do so over the week-end. People are trying to interest me in swimming, but I don't warm up to it. I am considering bowling and swimming. I want you want sport that is effective, available, indoors and inexpensive.

Many women have written or called to tell me that they are following my schedule of exercises and sensible eating plan that they are going to enroll in a gym and get off that 20 pounds. My hat is off to those that have the will power to do it without supervision. And for the benefit of those who may not have read the rest of this saga, I am avoiding all fried or creamed foods, cream soups, desserts except fruit, cream and sugar in beverages and on cereals. I have bean flaccid and milk one morning, buttered toast on alternate days and all between-meals nibbling.

Five and a half pounds is my loss to date. Tonight I'll forgo that broiled live lobster, not that it's so fattening, but the melted butter is.

I'll settle for broiled schrod with fresh vegetables and a salad.

Mary, you seem to have developed an unquenchable enthusiasm for your work—and to be brimful of confidence. It sounds like success in the offing.

5 Leave Hospital After Air Crash

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 24 (AP)—Five of the 12 persons injured in the crash of a Transcontinental & Western air sky-sleeper were released from hospitals today and the other seven were reported in fair condition.

Two men were killed. Capt. P. T. W. Scott, pilot, of Little Neck, N. Y., and John Frank Mott, TWA mechanic of Kansas City.

Frank Caldwell, chief of the Civil Aeronautics board, said his investigation of yesterday's pre-dawn crash would continue 10 days. Then an inquiry will be conducted here in an attempt to fix the cause.

MISTRIAL DENIED IN ATTACK CASE

socialite told Spell's lawyer that only fear for her life prevented her from resisting the bather after he hurried her onto a bed in the Stuhling home.

SCREAMED LOUDLY

She did struggle, she said, when Spell first accosted her as she came out of a shower-bath, and she screamed loudly hoping to arouse Spell's wife, Virginia, asleep on the floor above.

To Friedman's insistent queries whether she recalled "kicking him (Spell)" and "trying to tear at his face with your hands," Mrs. Stuhling replied:

"I didn't dare. The man tried to kill me once."

Asked if she could not recall what she had done, Mrs. Stuhling, near tears, replied:

"I don't remember, Mr. Friedman. I've tried to forget it... I was so frightened, so petrified, I didn't know what to do."

When Mrs. Stuhling appeared about to break down Friedman asked if she wanted a recess, but she declined.

The tiff between the attorneys came after Friedman asked Mrs. Stuhling how long she had been ill.

BLURTS ANSWER

She was silent for a moment, and then blurted:

"If you call being terribly upset and having bandages all the way up to both knees—" Friedman interrupted at that point with an objection, and Willie demanding she be allowed to finish her answer, said:

"There he (Friedman) sits and tortures and badgers. Judge Foster halted Willie, dismissed the jury, and then remarked, he thought both attorneys were trying to be fair in a difficult case."

"Friedman said, however, he considered it 'my duty to my client to ask the court for a mistrial."

Spell sat impassively through the third day of his trial in a chair facing the witness stand and jury.

18 Sweep Into Africa Widened by Britain

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 24 (AP)—The British imperial army, having mopped up Tobruk and seized upward of 20,000 troops, is continuing its sweep westward across northern Libya, the middle east command announced today.

Farther down in Africa, the high command said that on the Sudan-Eritrean front the Italians had abandoned two more outposts and "are continuing their retreat."

In Ethiopia native patriots were declared to have inflicted casualties on Italians in "band-run" thrusts south and east of Lake Tana. The Fascist-abandoned outposts were said to be Koy and Alcolta. Previous British forces had reported that the Italians had withdrawn 40 miles inside Eritrea.

CONTINUE ADVANCE

"Our troops are continuing their advance westward," today's war bulletin said briefly on the Libyan campaign.

In Kenya colony, which faces both Ethiopia and Italian Somaliland, the high command said that vigorous patrolling activity was under way "up to and over the frontier on a large portion of the frontier" and that "few enemy were encountered."

Military circles here believed the British high command would make every effort to follow up the Tobruk victory with an intensified offensive on the entire African front, extending from Libya to Ethiopia.

News that former Emperor Haile Selassie had re-entered Ethiopia to rally his old subjects was accepted here as evidence that the British drive in that area was swinging into high gear.

NO REST ALLOWED

Reports from Eritrea declared the Italians already had been forced to abandon 5000 square miles of that colony to British troops advancing eastward from the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

Nowhere are the Italians being given any rest, British sources said, hinting at a concerted drive to make good Prime Minister Churchill's promise to "tear the Italian empire in Africa to pieces."

Berlin Applauds Lindbergh View

BERLIN, Jan. 24 (INS)—An authoritative German spokesman, commenting today on the testimony of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh before the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said:

"In the face of the moral terrorism which American interventionists have brought to bear against everyone differing from their fantasies, one must take his hat off to Col. Lindbergh for his exemplary courage.

"Few other persons would risk doing the same thing."

ROME, Jan. 24 (INS)—Italian newspapers today carried no accounts of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's testimony in Washington yesterday.

Although a full report on his statements was carried by Stefani, the official Italian news agency, later it was killed and newspapers were forbidden to publish it.

would prefer to appear on the request of the committee.

WANTS EXECUTIVE QUIZ

"I take the liberty of suggesting that if my presence is desired by the committee, the hearing be in Executive session in order that I might make complete and frank replies to the questions that probably would be asked."

Bloom said that in view of these facts, the Democratic majority unanimously had agreed to extend Marshall, Stark and Brett invitations to testify and had assured the officials their testimony would be heard behind closed doors.

Fish originally had asked that the three military men be summoned.

When the committee was called to order, Rep. Luther A. Johnson (D.) of Texas said:

"I think Mr. Fish has some witnesses."

"I don't know whether I have or not," replied Fish, who has been marshalling the opposition forces.

"The committee will go into executive session," Bloom said.

Rep. Vorys (R.) of Ohio demanded a roll call on this question. The Republican members voted no, but the tally was 11 to 8 to close the session to the public and move in to a private committee room.

FISH TO INSIST

Fish told reporters he would insist the military experts appear in open session. He said that in inviting the officers he had told them they would be expected to testify publicly, but that they need not answer any "embarrassing" questions.

Asserting the lease-lend bill vitally concerned national defense, Fish declared the committee would be "derelict in its duty if we do not have expert testimony."

"I guess Bloom doesn't want them to testify," Fish added.

When the Democratic committee members retired to a private room for the executive session, all the Republicans, except Fish, remained behind, chatting and talking with newsmen.

"It looks like a sit-down strike on our side, but why not?" remarked Rep. Eaton (R.) of New Jersey. "They're in the majority and can run things the way they want to."

"Mr. Fish said that he was informed that some one had called the witnesses up and told them not to come. There was talk among us up here that it was the chairman (Bloom), but we don't know for sure."

CHARGES MAJORITY FEAR

When Fish came from the closed session, he told reporters the Democratic majority was trying to arrange to hear the military witnesses in secret, but added:

"I'm not interested."

"The majority are afraid of what the generals might say," Fish contended, "after what Lindbergh said yesterday about the impossibility of invasion of this country."

Fish said it was "perfectly evident" to him that both Lindbergh and Hugh S. Johnson, columnist and retired brigadier-general, had proved not only that hostile forces could not invade the United States but that it was "very improbable" the United States could invade France and drive out the Germans.

F. D. WON'T COMMENT

At his press conference today President Roosevelt said he would not express an opinion on any proposed changes to the British aid bill, at least until he saw the measure when it came out of committee and he could study the specific language of any amendments.

This was his reply when asked about reports he would have no objection to certain amendments placing limitations on the bill's grant of power and the life of its operations.

Mr. Roosevelt said he had not read, and therefore would not comment on, the statement made before the committee by Col. Lindbergh to the effect that the war might have been avoided if the United States had not given its moral support to Great Britain and France.

After stating he had not read the Lindbergh testimony, he asked the reporters why he should do so.

MYSTERY OF NAZI AIR RAIDS: BRITISH SHIPYARDS SPARED

By ROBERT C. NIXON

International News Service Staff Correspondent, who has just returned from London.
NEW YORK, Jan. 24—By accident or design, the German air force siege of Britain has left unscathed all the latest and most powerful units of the British fleet and merchant marine now in the process of construction.

I am able to reveal for the first time today that Adolf Hitler's Luftwaffe, in six months of the most intensive aerial bombing in history, has done virtually no damage at the British shipyards where several million tons of new warships of all categories, as well as merchant cargo carriers, are in various stages of completion.

If intentional, this strange inattention to the shipyards has led American naval observers to ask whether it is more than coincidence.

Does Germany, confident of defeating Britain by an overwhelming defense assault this spring, hope to take over the British navy and merchant marine virtually intact, they ask?

I asked one naval observer in London directly why Germany was avoiding bombing new ships under construction while directing the heaviest possible aerial, U-boat and surface raider attacks against British warships and cargo carriers at sea.

CRIPPLE DEFENSE

He explained that to sink British shipping carrying food and supplies to Britain, and to sink warships already in commission, is to cripple Britain's defense, thus possibly bringing the war to a quicker termination.

But the greater tonnage now being built in British shipyards will not be ready for use at sea for many months to come. If Germany can defeat Britain within a few months, this shipping is naturally no threat to Germany.

Why destroy a new navy and merchant marine which would be useful in further ventures, American observers ask?

Britain has a number of the world's most modern warships on the ways. Several of these are battleships of 35,000 tons, others of 42,000 tons. When completed they will be the most modern fighting ships in the world.

Other ships include several aircraft carriers, numerous cruisers, dozens of destroyers, high speed motor torpedo boats and auxiliaries. The keels of a large number of 8000 and 10,000-ton cargo carriers also have been laid to replace Britain's tremendous shipping losses.

On all of these Britain is feverishly at work. But the difficulties of fast completion are enormous. Shortage of high skilled labor, of materials and especially the shortage of working hours due to the blackout which in the winter months—for half the year—ends from 4:30 in the afternoon to around 8 o'clock in the morning are slowing up the building tremendously.

Britain's Royal Air Force saved England from annihilation and defeat last fall. On the shoulders of those valiant youths of from 18 to 22 years in a few short weeks now again will fall the responsibility for saving England.

The wildest air fighting the world has known will be seen over the coasts and cities of England this spring.

Last fall (it is history now), the RAF shot down some 3000 German planes over Britain. Most of these were knocked down in the ceaseless fighting that raged from mid-August to mid-October when the Luftwaffe sought in vain to destroy England's air defenders as a prelude to invasion.

The two greatest days were Aug. 15 when the Spitfires and Hurricanes accounted for 185 German machines within a few hours, and Sept. 15, when Germany's losses were 192 planes.

No neutral military observer in London today believes England can be successfully invaded so long as the RAF maintains air superiority over the British Isles. First, before the German army can come across the channel, the RAF must be rendered impotent.

Britain knows this. Germany knows it.

I know the RAF is stronger by far in the air today than it was last June. What the figures are of various types I frankly do not know. It is one of Britain's most carefully guarded secrets.

STRENGTH UNKNOWN

The last approximate figures (and these are old) was an estimate that Germany possesses probably 20,000 effective military aircraft, and perhaps 20,000 additional training, obsolete and commercial types.

Britain's first line strength is estimated at 5000. It may be 10,000. How many both belligerents have been able to turn out this winter will be known when the fighting is renewed on a full-scale this spring and summer.

I do know that Britain's productive effort has been touched only to a small extent by German bombing. New types far better than the Spitfires, which are still the world's finest combat airplanes, are being built for England's defense.

They are armored against attack and will be among the most heavily armed fighters possessed by any nation. In addition to the eight machine guns which fire octuple streams of lead at the rate of 9600 rounds per minute, the new fighters will be equipped with fast-firing cannon such as the Messerschmitts have used in past months.

If Britain is able to retain daytime mastery of the air, I do not believe there can be a successful invasion.

Nazi Raiders Hit Four Ships

BERLIN, Jan. 24 (AP)—The long arm of the Nazi air force reached out into the Atlantic yesterday to damage or sink approximately 2,600 tons of shipping bound for England, the official German News Agency, DNE, reported today.

Augmenting previous reports, the news agency declared that a 4,500-ton merchant vessel had been struck and ships by two bombs which tore her apart and sent her to the bottom within eight minutes.

Another 3,500-ton ship was reported to have been hit twice and left in a sinking condition. Bombs were reported to have started a large fire on a 5,000-ton ship, which was said to have stopped with a heavy list.

Heavy explosions and shooting flames followed bomb hits on a 1,200-ton freighter which probably could be considered lost, DNE said.

DUCE SEES GERMANY, ITALY UNDER ONE FLAG

ROME, Jan. 24 (INS)—Italy and Germany soon will become virtually a single nation for war purposes, in preparation for a decisive blow against Britain in the spring, Premier Mussolini's own newspaper, the Mil Popolo D'Italia said today.

"Italy and Germany present will be fused into a single body, a single military instrument, with a single flag," said Il Duce.

paper.

"United command will be exercised by a general staff of the (Nazi-fascist) revolution."

"We foresee a very stormy spring. We expect to suffer blows—but the enemy must prepare for the consequences of a cataclysm."

In the Giornale D'Italia, Mussolini's Rome mouthpiece, Editor Vittorio Foa wrote:

"The defense of high ideals which is supposed to inspire President Roosevelt's policy of real, though undeclared war alongside England, is accompanied by defense of special material interests of the United States."

"After solution of the strategic problem of the Caribbean, the United States now is tending to acquire bases along the Atlantic route, starting at Bermuda."

Mussolini's Il Duce radio denounced the importance of the British occupation of Tobruk in Libya.

Arab rebellions against the British were mentioned by La Tribuna. "Bitterness of the war undertaken by the British in Cyrenaica is producing anti-British activities among the Arabs in Syria, Palestine and Transjordan," the paper said. "These are forerunners of well-organized armed insurrections."

Indo-China Border Bombed by Siamese

BANGKOK, Thailand, Jan. 24 (AP)—The high command announced today that the Thailand (Siamese) air force had carried out widespread air raids on the Cambodia border area of French Indo-China in what it said was retaliation against new French air attacks on Thai towns. The high command said that the raids were aimed at disrupting the French supply lines and depots and at destroying the French air bases in the region.

Bailing out at 22,000 feet after a terrific dog-fight is just one of the experiences of the inviolated air heroes in Austin Lake's new series, "THE RAF WOUNDED SPEAK." These stories, from the pilots themselves, passed by the censors, BEGIN IN MONDAY'S BOSTON AMERICAN.

Lion of Judah Back To Lead Ethiopians

SOMEWHERE IN ETHIOPIA (Via Khartoum), Jan. 15 (Delayed) (AP)—Former Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia proudly raised the red, yellow and green flag of his former kingdom in a hidden mountain clearing here today, then set off to the interior to head British-aided Ethiopian tribesmen fighting their Italian conquerors.

The bearded former conquering Lion of Judah, driven from his throne in 1936 by Premier Mussolini's troops, came back to Ethiopia in a British army plane.

He flew from Khartoum, British headquarters in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan where he had conferred in recent weeks with rebel chieftains who slipped across the frontier to plan with him the rearming of Ethiopian natives with British guns.

NEGUS EXULTANT

Accompanying him were a British liaison officer; Ras Kassa, his former war minister, and a high dignitary of the Ethiopian Church.

The Negus, exultant and determined, gazed down searchingly as the plane circled over the wooded hills of his former kingdom, seeking the cunningly concealed landing field prepared by his soldiers. Then the pilot swung his craft down through a narrow clearing, its wings clearing trees on either side by a bare 10 feet as it came to rest.

A British staff major greeted the ex-emperor and party and accompanied them on a short automobile journey to an Ethiopian encampment where dignitaries taking part in the welcoming ceremony included the former crown prince of Ethiopia.

A unit of tribal fighters, with British officers at their head, paraded and presented arms smartly as their old leader appeared.

That was the start of a brief ceremony.

CALLED "YOUR MAJESTY"

The British liaison officer read a message from Maj.-Gen. William Platt, commander of the Sudanese forces, addressing Haile Selassie as "Your Majesty" and expressing "our best wishes for success in the enterprise upon which you are now embarking and for the future welfare and contentment of your country and people."

"It is our earnest hope that our combined and co-ordinate efforts will soon rid your country of our common enemy," the message continued. "It is a great disappointment that operations against the enemy elsewhere prevent my expressing these sentiments personally to Your Majesty."

Haile Selassie responded:

"I am entering Ethiopia with full confidence of assistance from the British government and allied forces in order to crush the common enemy."

Then, with the crown prince at his side, he walked to the flagpole and raised the Ethiopian flag. A bugler blew the royal salute and the former emperor reviewed troops who marched past him.

GUERRILLA RAIDS

After a quick meal in a camouflaged tent under the trees, the party set forth for the interior to join a British military mission and British regular forces already established in the heart of the country.

An officer of the British mission who had spent months in the interior said the Italians in Ethiopia confined their activities to main roads, not daring to venture deep into areas dominated by unfriendly tribesmen.

Mule convoys had replaced motor transport to a great degree, the officer said, and many roads exposed to native guerrilla raids were left unused by the Italians, while elsewhere the Fascist conquerors moved only in closely protected convoys.

British Ouster Hits 'Eton Army'

LONDON, Jan. 21 (AP)—The British war office cracked down today on the "Colonel Blimp" school of thought in its modernized and colored of his command Lord Col. H. C. Bingham, who wrote to the Times saying that British officers impressed by the old school had fallen down on their knees.

Col. Bingham, who wears the tie of Eton himself, commanded an officers' color training unit. His letter complained that new officers drawn from the working classes, as contrasted with the "old aristocratic and feudal (almost) classes who led the 'army,'" thought only of themselves.

Right away you can feel VapoRub stimulating Nature's own cold-fighting defenses. Used in time, it actually helps to keep many colds from developing.

Also use VapoRub for swift relief from the suffocating stuffiness and congestion of a head cold.

If a Cold Develops

(Some colds get by all precautions)

Thoroughly massage throat, chest, and back with Vicks VapoRub, then spread on a thick layer of VapoRub, cover with a warm cloth, and go to bed. VapoRub brings wonderful relief and invites restful sleep. VapoRub stimulates the skin like a warming poultice, while its medicinal vapors are breathed into the cold-irritated air passages. Often when morning comes, most of the cold's discomforts are gone.

VICTIM OF LOVE KILLER IS BURIED

"administering" the fatal overdose of narcotic and "placing the rope around his neck."

Authorities base their charge on notes found in the Brighton St. West End, apartment where Emery's body lay cold in death while Mrs. Steadman was stretched unconscious on a bed in another room, also overcome by the narcotic-and-milk cocktail. They also allege she made full admission of the slaying.

BURIAL IN MAINE

Emery's body, claimed by his father, Waldo Emery, a naval architect at Portsmouth, N. H., was going to a grave at Alfred, Me. this afternoon after services in the old Emery homestead in that town. In the application for a burial permit filed with Deputy Health Commr. Joseph Monahan at Poston City Hall, it was disclosed that young Emery's 25th birthday was on Jan. 14, seven days before he was slain.

BORN IN WEYMOUTH

Officials had previously reported that the Natick man had celebrated his birthday last Sunday with Mrs. Steadman. Emery was born in North Weymouth and his mother was the former Alice Williams of Alfred, Me.

Cause of death was noted as "ingestion of poison," with the memorandum: "Under investigation."

It was only after a long period of quiet and when her mind was fully cleared of the effects of the poison she drank that the girl was told by her father of Emery's death.

Her father had greeted and kissed his daughter with affection at the hospital, then paused for a long moment when she asked:

"How is Bob?"

He had been told by police that she had described how she poisoned and strangled Emery. But it had now become his task to inform her of the tragedy.

"He is dead," Stanwood declared.

GIRL COLLAPSES

At his words, Mrs. Steadman collapsed, before either her father or two policemen assigned to guard her could prevent her from falling.

Restored to consciousness the daughter then asked a multitude of questions, begging her father to relate the entire story of what had happened. He asked her not to think of her troubles, however, and told her that Edward F. Flynn, engaged as her counsel, would guide and advise her.

Meanwhile, police of the Joy station, under Capt. William Donovan, continued their investigation of the slaying. Numerous articles found in Mrs. Steadman's apartment, including bottles and note-paper, were scrutinized for fingerprints.

Several articles of Emery's clothing which Emery took from his Natick home were sought by investigators.

PAST LIFE STUDIED

Circumstances leading to the friendship of Emery and Mrs. Steadman were to be studied, and to that end detectives prepared to question the young woman's husband, Kenneth Steadman of Pittsburgh. Police said they wanted to know more about other friends of hers in Boston, mentioned in letters to her husband.

More was sought, also, concerning the actions of Emery during the last days of his life and a check was made of hotels and lodging houses in the Back Bay, South End and Beacon Hill district to determine whether he had taken a room after leaving home.

Lack of information concerning

Emery's whereabouts until his last meeting with Mrs. Steadman and the search for his missing clothing injected mystery into the case.

Still sought, likewise, was the source of 230 sleeping tablets which Mrs. Steadman obtained for the death potion. Such a large quantity was termed by police as an unusual amount for a druggist to sell in one transaction.

While police pressed their investigation, the words and behavior of Mrs. Steadman were closely observed by alienists and psychiatrists.

Under the Briggs law, state alienists are required to examine any person charged with a capital offense.

Atty. Flynn, indicating he may seek to prove Mrs. Steadman was temporarily deranged at the time of the slaying, retained Dr. Abraham Myerson and Dr. Leo Alexander, famed alienists, to conduct mental tests of the girl and study her history.

The hearing at which Judge Putnam granted the murder warrant was brief. Held, as all variant applications are, in the judge's chamber, the public was barred from it. Sgt. Thomas McIndoe of Joy st. police station produced for the court two notes left by Mrs. Steadman before she attempted to take her own life.

One was addressed to her father. The other was addressed to John L. Benvil, Medfield gas station operator, who was a close friend of Emery.

THEY HAD BEEN FRIENDS

In both notes, the blonde Harvard Business School secretary wrote that she realized the hopelessness of her love affair with Emery. In both, she told of her decision that death was the only way out and, in both, she requested "Ruthie," the pretty young wife of her sweetheart, be taken care of.

Mrs. Steadman and Mrs. Emery had been friends, the latter told police when she tearfully came to Boston to identify the body of her husband.

The warrant was placed in the hands of Capt. William J. Donovan of Joy st. station, who sent it to a policeman constantly on guard in the private room in which the defendant is held at the Psycho-pathic Hospital.

HALIFAX NEARS U. S. ON NEW BATTLESHIP

Majesty's fleet was officially announced and hailed on all sides as refutation of any and all German claims that Britain is no longer mistress of the seas.

The announcement, incidentally, was the first disclosure that the King George V—rushed to completion since the outbreak of the war—had been actually commissioned for service.

Accompanied by Lady Halifax, the former foreign secretary embarked from a northern British port on an undisclosed date.

Prime Minister and Mrs. Winston Churchill were on hand to bid him farewell, as were many other Cabinet ministers, including Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, Minister of Labor Ernest Bevin, Lord Beaverbrook and Sir Walter Monckton.

Churchill was attired in his now familiar knee-length tuxedo jacket, with a sailor's cap on his head at a jaunty angle. Lord Halifax wore his usual black derby, astrakhan-collared great-coat and carried a neatly rolled umbrella.

At the unnamed port, Lord and Lady Halifax were taken out to the King George V aboard an admiralty gig. Churchill went along with them, and according to current reports, handled the tiller part of the distance to demonstrate his nautical prowess. The Prime Minister, according to this version, boarded the battleship and said a final farewell to the new ambassador and his wife on deck.

All London newspapers featured the story under banner-headlines.

The visit of H. M. S. King George to the United States is a grateful compliment to the American people and a powerful demonstration to the whole world of our superiority in battleships over the combined battleship forces of Italy and Germany.

The King George V was launched on Feb. 21, 1926.

Word was received from London that April that the King George V and four new sister-ships were undergoing final runs, but the ship had not been mentioned in official dispatches since that time.

The battleship, described by the London press at the time of her launching as one of the largest battleships ever built in this country, measured 14,140 tons in two quadruple barrels, and was twin in rct. 16 5.5-inch guns and many lighter ones.

The ship was designed to carry three airplanes and 150 officers and men. The 33,000-ton vessel has a speed of about 30 knots.

Their Own Stories of Death and Dog Fights 22,000 Feet Over London

by AUSTEN LAKE

Never before have the censors permitted these wounded air heroes to talk. Now Austen Lake brings you, in their own words, the stories of spectacular sky scraps and tumbles four miles high.

They tell, first hand, how it feels to take part in combat, knocking down enemy planes though often outnumbered eight to one; what thoughts raced through their minds as they squeezed the triggers and saw their bullets rain death upon the enemy; how their own number came up and what it was like bailing out at 22,000 feet when their planes were shot from under them.

These are their own sensational stories, their own fiction-like experiences which make up a heroic part of England's defense.

All British Forces Set For Invader

LONDON, Jan. 24 (AP)—Britain's armed services have been ordered to "close ranks" in preparations to meet an anticipated all-out invasion attempt against these islands in the spring, it was learned today.

The army guarding these shores—the most powerful force ever assembled by Britain—already is carrying out "dress rehearsals" to meet the expected blow.

Informed sources said the British defense forces, in intensive training for more than a year against the day the Nazi legions might try to set foot on the British Isles, have been ordered to speed up every phase of their preparations.

When — and if — the invaders strike, military quarters said it probably would be the greatest assault ever hurled by a military machine. And, they added, Hitler would find this island seat of empire ready.

Considerable stress has been placed on the part the Royal Air Force is expected to play. The ranks of the RAF have been greatly increased by recruits drawn from the home front and by trained pilots turned out under the broad commonwealth air training scheme.

As one invasion precaution a campaign has been launched to make Britons—both fighting men and civilians—gas conscious. This action was taken when it was found that only a fifth of the civilian population carried gas masks.

One suggested remedy of this situation was that gas masks be shown to obtain tickets into air raid shelters.

The ministry of home security is considering the inauguration of regular gas alarm practices for civilians. Gas chambers are being established so that the people may become accustomed to wearing masks "under fire."

Manufacturers of equipment used to combat gas were reported to have been asked to operate plants 24 hours a day, seven days a week so the country could be fully prepared.

In addition to a possible attempt to send hundreds of thousands of troops across the North sea and English channel in boats and barges, some quarters believe the Nazi high command might try to drop shock troops from the air, possibly from trains of gliders towed by giant transport planes.

NAZIS HELP NIP RUMAN RIOTING to be executed within 10 hours of sentencing.

FIREARMS CALLED IN
All permits for firearms were cancelled, even those for hunting weapons. All civilian-held guns must be turned in by nightfall today.

Information that German forces were helping restore order was lacking, but German motorized troops, along with Rumanian, patrolled Bucharest streets while Gen. Antonescu sought to restore order throughout the country after three bloody days.

Baron Manfred von Killinger, newly appointed Nazi minister to Bucharest, arrived today. He was met at the station by Minister of Justice Michael Antonescu, former Minister Fabricius, the chief of the German war mission, General Hansen, and the chief of the German mission, Lieut. Gen. Spied.

JEWS EXECUTED
The bones Jews were broken into and scores of them were reported killed in basement executions during the reign of terror.

At the height of the fighting the name of J. Webb Newton of El Myer, Va., first secretary of the U. S. legation, twice was commandeered by troops and civilians who used it as a fort from which they shot at Antonescu's soldiers.

The army later stationed a tank in Benton's yard to protect the premises from further forays.

All Americans, including Benton and his mother, were reported to have reached safety in the American legation, which was untouched.

Early this morning Antonescu announced that the Iron Guard would be reorganized under his own leadership.

Army generals were put in charge of secret police and the Bucharest police took over the gas and electric companies. Exchange of foreign money was forbidden and all public meetings were outlawed. Hundreds of army sub-officers were promoted.

Many Bucharest hospitals were full of wounded, however, and partial lists of dead were posted outside.

The situation in the provinces was said to remain much in doubt, especially at Brasov, Giurgiu, Constanta, Ploesti, Cantina and Craiova, which the Iron Guard announced it had taken over.

Army headquarters said, however, that calm rapidly was being restored in all those centers and that soldiers now were in control.

New High Court Justice Picked

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24 (AP)—President Roosevelt said today he had chosen a successor for Justice James C. McReynolds, who will retire from the Supreme Court Feb. 1, but that the name would not be announced for many weeks.

The President told a close confidant, it was his intention to have this much to save a lot of head-aches, speculation and a flood of recommendations and endorsements for the appointment.

Atty. Gen. Robert H. Jackson and Sen. James F. Byrnes, South Carolina, Democrat, have been mentioned for the vacancy.

Nazi Airman Recaptured After Escape in Canada

SMITHS FALLS, Ont., Jan. 24 (AP) A German airman, Ottman Hollman, was recaptured in the railroad yards here today after a short bid for freedom while en route to a prison camp.

Hollman, a 25-year-old lieutenant and veteran of both the Spanish war and the air siege of Britain, told reporters in a police station, "I am an officer and it is the duty of a German officer to escape if he can."

Hollman said a companion was killed when he was shot down off the coast of Scotland three months ago. He reached land, he said, only after spending 52 hours in a flimsy, collapsible boat. From Britain he was brought to Canada for internment.

He waited for the opportunity to escape, he said, and jumped through a prison train window just as the train pulled out the yards at 6 a. m. Three policemen, one of whom saw him jump from the window, captured him again after a brief chase.

Munching a sandy bar, he thanked police for volunteering to get coffee which paid for himself.

"I have money," he said. "These shillings were given me by a British guard who is a very fine fellow and a good friend of mine."

In almost perfect English, Hollman said he would have liked to have become an actor, adding:

"I was on the stage for a little while. But my father said I must be an officer, a German officer, and so I became a pilot."

Since the start of the war, there have been 26 attempts to escape from Canadian internment camps, all unsuccessful. One intern was shot and killed when he resisted capture.

BE WISE... AT THE FIRST SIGN OF A COLD SEE YOUR DOCTOR

FROM CHINA TO STUDY

Takes Course at Hub Animal Hospital

Learning—Barbara Eastham, 19, long a resident of Tientsin, China, comes to Boston and the Angell Memorial Hospital to take a course as veterinary nurse. Here (above and left) she's shown with some of the dogs she loves... "whether they have pedigrees or not."

Some Stunt—A ski instructor at Land o' Lakes, Wis., Olaf Thonvald thrills the photographer by doing a somersault on skis. Are you an expert? Well, try this.

Girl Studies To Be China Veterinary

War made life complicated in her home town of Tientsin, China, and war drove her from school in England but war isn't going to stop 19-year-old Barbara Eastham from following through in her chosen profession.

And the process is, somewhat of a strange one for a girl at the delicate age of entering to enter the blue and white of all kinds of dogs.

Miss Eastham, daughter of Mr. V. Eastham, an American lawyer, who has lived in Tientsin for years, is now at Angell Memorial Hospital in Boston, taking up a course as a veterinary nurse.

PLAN OF STUDY

"It's going to take me another year or so to finish the course," she smiles, "but I'm going to do it, and then I hope to go back in China and open an animal hospital there."

"When I say yes, I mean just yes, yes," she adds. "It doesn't matter whether they have pedigrees or not."

When she does succeed in opening her animal hospital, it will be the second institution of that type in all China, the girl explained, and the need of such hospitals is what first gave her the idea of studying so that she could administer care.

LOVERS OF PETS
All Chinese are great lovers of their pets, she said, even the poorest, but there are few veterinarians—practically none—in the country, and if there were a lot, the average Chinese couldn't afford the fees.

"They can't even call a doctor for their own members most of the time," she declared. "But all of that will be changed some day."

Unlucky Soldier—Rejected and dejected! That's the sad story of Pvt. James Reeves, 24, of Cambridge, a soldier of Battery F, 180th Field Artillery, who was all ready to go to camp with his buddies when he was stopped short... by bad teeth.

And 12 Lived—Crumpled into a tangle of twisted struts and buckled sheeting, this is what is left of the Transcontinental and Western Airlines after it crashed near Lambert Field, St. Louis, killing two members of the crew and injuring ten passengers and two others of the crew. Today, all the injured were reported improving, with five dismissed from the hospital to which they had been rushed.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

-3- MY DAY

NATION'S FIRST AND SECOND LADIES
Mrs. Henry A. Wallace Confers with Mrs. Roosevelt

TO THOUSANDS of Massachusetts people, Governor Saltonstall's record-breaking budget will be disappointing, if not disheartening.

The Governor, a self-admitted champion of economy, unoppressive taxation and pay-as-you-go policies, is asking for expenditures totalling the sky-high sum of one hundred and eighty-nine million dollars during the next two years.

This is $13,119,000 MORE than the Saltonstall Administration spent in 1939 and 1940.

Also, despite the Governor's long contention that money going out should never exceed the amount of the money coming in, his budget provides for two bond issues of $5,300,000.

That cash is to be borrowed and spent during the next twenty-four months.

Later on, it will be raised through the onerous processes of taxation.

In defense of his newly adopted pay-more-than-you-get program, the Governor argues that the current national emergency necessitates big spending and explains:

"I do not believe our people should be called upon to pay sharply higher taxes during the current biennium, when the burden can properly be spread over a longer period."

This sounds fine at first hearing—almost as fine as it did when previous Governors said substantially the same thing.

But, unfortunately, the Federal Government also happens to be mortgaging the future in the hope that tomorrow's citizens will assume the debts of today's citizens.

Therefore, instead of having to pay off one mortgage, Massachusetts taxpayers will have to take on TWO.

The sensible and practical course for every State to follow as long as the national re-armament program continues is one that leads to a general reduction in all the ordinary expenses of government.

By this method—and only by this method—money will be made available to pay for the airplanes, warships and other military equipment which are now being built.

COTTON MILLS in the New England area have gained little from the defense program spending, reports the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers.

In fact, according to this organization's survey, production levels are lagging nearly 15 per cent below the 1937 peak.

This is disturbing news. It means that thousands of jobs have left our six important industrial States and gone to other States, particularly to those in the South.

But it ought not to be discouraging news. We still have the best labor in the country. We still have superior water power. We still have abundant financial resources. And, if we sincerely try, we can bring back our sojourning factories.

But even if we cannot, there's certainly no reason for despair. We can restore our shipbuilding industry, once the world's greatest.

We can take over the job of replacing the hundreds of vessels which have been lost in the current European war.

While we are doing this, we can develop new industries and aim to make them better and more substantial than those we have lost.

Vision and work made New England a foremost manufacturing area in the days of our grandparents.

The same healthy combination will not fail to succeed now.

WOMEN OUTLIVE MEN and widows are generally more numerous than widowers.

This fact has long been acknowledged by census takers, insurance companies and other individuals and persons interested in human longevity.

Now Maine's famous Century Club provides additional proof. In that unique organization, whose membership is limited to men and women who have lived at least five score years, there are twenty-three women and ten men.

Science offers many convincing reasons why women enjoy longer lives than men.

One is that women are naturally stronger and better able to resist diseases.

Another is that women take care of their health and are less apt to ignore illnesses that are fatal when neglected.

A third is that women are not called upon to fight in wars and are therefore spared the losses that almost every generation of men has experienced.

The last reason is probably as good as any.

Certainly hundreds of men might be members of Maine's Century Club today if they had not been killed three-quarters of a century ago in the Civil War and later conflicts.

WASHINGTON, Thursday—We saw the newsreels of the inauguration the night before last, and they certainly were well done. I was particularly struck by the inaugural parade, especially the NYA, CCC and WPA units.

I wish we might have had more clearly demonstrated the various activities carried on by these organizations, for I feel sure others were as interested as I was. The pageantry of a military parade is always exciting, and that part of it cannot help but be impressive.

However, as the different units marched past us and ended up with the rapid rolling by of the tanks and other military equipment, I thought of a poem which Nanette W. Barnard sent me a few days ago. I quote it here for your consideration.

PEACE
When the madness of war is over
And the siren's shriek shall cease,
Like the calm of benediction
Will descend on the world a peace.
And men with holy effort
Is tribute to those who have gone,
Will seek to establish justice
And conquer evil and wrong.
They will live with loftier purpose,
True kindness toward neighbor and friend
But with unflinching resolution
That forever war must end.

I HOPE that what she predicts will come true and that we shall translate our "loftier purpose" into such practical ways as the consideration of the world economic situation. We must work to make it possible for people all over the world to live better and, therefore, have less reason to attack their neighbors.

We might as well face the fact that it is fundamental of human nature to want to feel sure and to be comfortable. Nobody likes being cold and hungry. If we want peace we must keep this fact constantly before us.

YESTERDAY afternoon, the ladies of the Fifth General Assembly of the Council of State Governments, came to tea with me. There were a few familiar faces and I was especially glad to see Miss Grace Reavu, an old friend from Albany, N. Y.

In the evening, Mr. Tom Campbell, an old friend from Montana and New Mexico, dined with us. I have rarely known anyone with a more vivid personality. He radiates enthusiasm and energy.

Mrs. Morgenthau, Anna and I are just going to lunch with Mrs. Harold Ickes, wife of the Secretary of the Interior. This gives us a pleasant drive into the country.

On The Side

By E. V. DURLING

IS THERE LUCK in odd numbers? Or any particular number? After a long and conscientious observation, Tobias Smollett observed: "Number three is always fortune." Is that why three-act plays are always more successful than two-act plays? And does it account for number three post position being in the money more than any other at horse races? But then how about three on a match? . . . It is continually claimed that mothers are jealous of their sons' wives. It is more often the wife who is jealous of her husband's mother. Most mothers are extremely gratified when their son gets a good wife. Have you read Grace Noll Crowell's beautiful poem beginning:

There are no words I am master of
With which to thank you, God,
For my son's wife.

That all fat men are good natured is a fallacy. Some of the groucheiest, meanest and generally ill-natured men in existence are excessively fat . . . "Chicago O'Brien became rich playing favorites to shoot," says a sport scribe. It isn't so. Mr. O'Brien gathered much coin of the realm playing the so-called "solid horse" for show. That is the animal most consistently in the money. Such horses are not always the favorites to win.

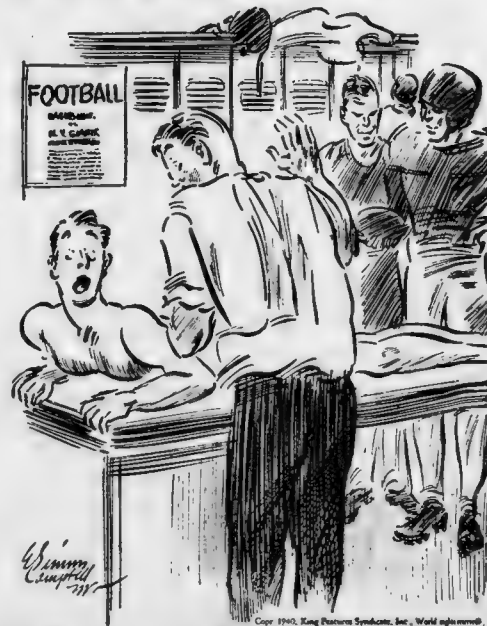

ALMOST CONFIDENTIAL:
"It is amusing to hear men saying women do not know how to make love," writes a Montezano, Wash., girl. "Not one man in a hundred thousand knows how to kiss. Most of them kiss with too much enthusiasm and too little tenderness. Now when you find a man who uses just enough enthusiasm and plenty of tenderness you really have something" . . . A waitress writes: "Funniest order I ever took was for apple pie and gravy" . . . Chinese erect monuments to wise men and none to warriors. The French seem inclined that way, too. More monuments to authors, musicians and painters in Paris than to soldiers. Same is true of city of San Francisco, Cal. In New York, statues of warriors predominate . . . Spoken highly of as interesting reading is "Two Thousand and Ten Days of Hitler" by Patsy Ziemer, a 12-year-old former resident of Germany.

BRIEFLY: "Abe Lyman smokes 20 cigars a day," says Les Zimmerman. And so what, Les? That's only a little better than average. George McManus, comic strip genius, smokes about 35 cigars a day, lighting the first one as soon as he wakes up. . . Client who has been going in for voice culture states: "My husband says I am more desirable since I have had the strident tones taken out of my speaking voice." No doubt the husband is right. A wife who talks loudly or cackles when she laughs is worse than one who snores . . . Subscriber speaks of the "old New England dishes of quahog pie and turkey turn-out. I spent nine years in New England, but never tasted or heard of either of these.

The Campbell Girl

"Hey! Go easy! I've been SITTING all afternoon. I'm a substitute."

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

WHEN I was little they told me that I should always be a good girl.

But how, I demanded, would I know how to be a good girl? My conscience, they assured me, would tell me.

What was my conscience? Was it like my stomach?

No, it wasn't like my stomach. They couldn't tell me exactly what a conscience was, or how it worked. Nobody knew—not exactly—but it was something deep inside me that would always tell me what was good and what was bad.

Always? Yes, always. Wouldn't it ever, ever make mistakes?

No, consciences never made mistakes. If I would just listen to my conscience and do what it told me, I would always be good.

AND SO, with this extremely rudimentary information, I started on the hazardous pursuit of righteousness. My conception of conscience was still a vague. Something in the nature of an alarm clock, I gathered; though why I should be born with alarm clocks ticking in my small insides was rather bewildering.

But, of course, I was speedily disillusioned: Almost immediately I was doing things which I considered to be entirely right but which proved to be completely wrong!

And, just as often, my conscience advised me to shrink from doing things which seemed absolutely wrong, but which proved to be most bravely and beautifully right!

HOW COME? Wasn't my conscience on the job? I listened attentively, but the more I listened the more bewildered I grew.

Sometimes my conscience whispered, as I had been told it would. In fact, to be quite accurate, it fairly yelled its admonition. But was that any guarantee that the admonition was correct? Anything but! Often it was the worst steer I could possibly have received.

Again, when I was desperately confused and in urgent need of immediate guidance, the darned thing didn't even yell!

Worst of all, I soon found that, by even the slightest cajoling, I could make my conscience take either side I wished. In fact, it would obligingly TAKE BOTH SIDES AT ONCE!

And so, with much shock and surprise, much secret trembling and open rebellion, I came to the sad but sensible realization that CONSCIENCES AREN'T INFALLIBLE.

There is, indeed, something in every spirit that cries out for truth and courage, kindness and decency—but it has to do its crying through so many layers of cowardice, stupidity, selfishness and greed that the original message is always distorted, often lost.

That doesn't mean that we shouldn't "try to be good." But it does mean that we must struggle for a knowledge of goodness. Instead of sitting back and letting conscience hand us the low-down on a silver platter. We must discover what is good and determine what is bad by ourselves—and pay the price. Which is usually plenty.

You Can Be Beautiful

Protect Your Skin From That Snowy Holiday

By ARLINE GOULD

YOU'RE ABSOLUTELY right... there's nothing like a snow week-end to fill your lungs with beauty-making ozone, and give you the kind of zest that shows in an animated expression and personality... but your skin can get the ultimate benefit only if it is completely insured against drying and chapping.

You may depend on a dab of this or a dab of that... believe us, it's insufficient. If you want really specialized help... for the rest of the winter week-ends, or that glamorous holiday you're going to spend at Florida, Sun Valley or Quebec, be sure to have with you a clever new "snowbird twosome."

This does the problem up brown... and you'll come back from playing in the sun and snow with a coppery glow and the smoothest complexion you've ever owned.

The "snowbird twosome" is a complete before-and-after-treatment for complexion protection. First there is "before you ski," a creamy emulsion that helps guard against snowburn, wind, chapping and roughness. Just smooth the pre-colored lotion all over yourself before starting off in the morning. Apply more to face and hands before going out. It will filter out burning rays and is sufficiently absorbent to act as a wonderful powder base.

Then "after you ski" there is a tube of snowy white cream... to lubricate the skin and relieve any feeling of dryness or tightness which is bound to follow after a day in wintry gales. Apply a little before dinner, as you clean up and use it as a night treatment before going to bed.

If you would like information on this unusual "snowbird twosome," phone Arline Gould, L.H. 4000, week-days except Saturday, or write, care of the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Smart Set Functions

By BETTY ALDEN

BOSTON GARDEN seemed like a branch office of the Longwood Cricket Club last night for Alice Marble's Boston debut as a professional tennis player . . .

All of Longwood's best known tennis enthusiasts were there, and the umpires, basemen and ballboys were transplanted from the Cricket Club for the evening . . .

Nathaniel Niles, vice-president of the American Umpire Ass'n and one of the leading lights during tennis week in the summer, served in official capacity, as did Mike Blanchard, "Barney" Plimpton, Russell Codman and others . . .

The socialites in the audience have seen plenty of tennis, and many of them have entertained Alice in their homes, but last night was the first time they had ever seen her beaten . . . In her singles match she bowed to Mary Hardwick, the plucky little English girl who has turned professional to tour the country and help raise funds to send home for war relief work . . .

Alice and Mary arrived at the Garden with Eleo Sears and Alice's coach and close friend, Eleanor Tennant . . . Alice wore a cozy leopard coat over her tennis dress, and Mary's navy reefer was faced with scarlet and festooned with numerous British insignias . . . Eleo was dressed in black, with a long, silky caracul coat, and Miss Tennant's pretty iron gray hair was done in a ringlet coiffure above a cranberry red dress and jaunty beaver coat . . . She carried Alice's honey colored suitcase, which was marked with a big red monogram "A. M.," and contained the tennis queen's sneakers and white wool polo coat, which she changed into before walking out into the spotlight to receive a cheering welcome from the crowd . . .

Many Ardent Fans Attend

A GLIMPSE around the boxes revealed such ardent fans as Mr. and Mrs. Melvin M. Johnson, Jr., the latter in a fur coat and modish brown twisted jersey turban, Lucy Cochrane with her grandmother, Mrs. Alonzo Wessel, and Mrs. Harold G. Kern . . . The latter accented her blonde hair with a beige wool dress, brown coat trimmed with wide tuxedo revers of beige lynx and a striking brown bonnet faced with bittersweet . . . Blonde Lucy Cochrane was bareheaded as usual and wore a gray tailored suit, white blouse and white gloves . . . Mrs. Wessel's auburn hair was also bare above a mink coat . . .

Lucy Pope, Paul Fox, Vincent Lamb, debutante Anne Lyman, and Mrs. Joseph Morrill with her daughter, Mrs. Whitfield Painter, a champ in her own right a few years ago, were also in the throng . . . Virginia Ellis, another well known player, attended in a party with Eddie Nash, the J. Brooks Fennos, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. James Moss . . . They had all come on from a buffet supper at the home of the Melvin M. Johnsons, Jr. . . . Catharine Clark attended with her fiancé, J. Henry Alexandre, 3d . . .

Who'll Be Figure Skating Queen?

NOW THAT THIS important tennis event has taken place, society's interest is turning to another sport and the exciting question of who's to be the queen of American figure skating? . . .

Now that Joan Tozzler of Cambridge, national champion for several years, has retired from competition to live in Honolulu as the bride of Philip Spalding, Jr., all the graceful and expert young skaters in the U. S. A. are eagerly awaiting the national championships in the hopes of coping the title and succeeding Joan . . .

The greatest influx of top notch amateur skaters ever gathered here is arriving this week-end for the national competitions at the Skating Club of Boston out on Soldiers Field Road . . . There the King and Queen of U. S. skaters, and the doubles, novice and junior champs will be selected during three exciting days of eliminations . . .

Until we looked at the list of cities and states represented by the visitors we always thought that Beantown had a monopoly on the country's finest skaters . . . In recent years all the champs have been Bostonians . . . but this year our own young hopefuls, Gretchen Merrill, Dorothy Glazier and Betsy Nichols, will have to put up a stiff fight against experts from St. Paul, Hollywood, Baltimore, New York, and practically every big city in the country . . .

BOSTON, being the hostess club, will stage numerous parties for the visitors who will have their first chance to cut figures and curleyques on the ice at Roger Turner's pond in Walpole tomorrow night at the annual Skidsko Club Carnival . . .

The Boston skaters chosen to compete in the nationals, will be entertained at a supper and movie party at the Skating Club tonight, after which the stars will reciprocate by staging an impromptu exhibition.

ONE OF SOCIETY'S most attractive spring brides will be post deb Janet Pierce, who will be married after Easter to Perry H. Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ames Johnson of Boston and Cohasset. The bride-to-be is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walworth Pierce of Bay State rd.

How to Give Stuffings a Fresh Flavor

By MARTHA LEE

IF THE FAMILY says, "No, thank you!" when offered more stuffing, or if they eat the meat and leave the stuffing on the plate, the chances are that the cook has let her stuffings get a bit monotonous with too frequent repetition. A new stuffing makes the best meat or poultry taste still better, not to mention what it can do to transform a budget-thrifty roast into a simply de luxe item.

Here are some inspired suggestions that will add zest no end to cooking. Incidentally, if you're brooding over a new way to serve fish, try the Dover Straits recipe and watch the appetites perk up. The magic two teaspoonfuls of glycerine, small as it is, just naturally "does something" to intensify the flavors.

DOVER STRAITS STUFFING

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup milk
4 cups bread crumbs
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup butter
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup chopped onion
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup chopped celery
2 eggs, beaten
 $1\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. salt
 $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. sage or preferred herb
2 tsp. glycerine

Combine bread crumbs and milk. Melt butter and cook onion and celery for five minutes. Mix with crumbs. Add beaten egg, glycerine and seasonings. Mix thoroughly. This is an inexpensive recipe which may be used for many purposes. It is especially good for roast pork or spareribs.

MUSHROOM-POTATO STUFFING

2 cups hot mashed potatoes
4 cups dry bread crumbs
1-3 cup melted butter
2 small onions, chopped
1 egg, beaten
2 tsp. glycerine
1 tsp. poultry seasoning or preferred herb

1 tbsp. minced parsley
2 cups chopped mushrooms
Melt butter and saute mushrooms for 5 minutes. Blend beaten egg with potatoes and combine with mushrooms. Dip crusts in cold water and squeeze dry and add to center. Add other ingredients and combine with potato mixture. This will stuff a 6-pound fowl.

This is especially good if one likes a potato-bread base:

SOUTHERN CORN BREAD STUFFING

(Part 1—First bake the corn bread—using the following):
 $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups corn meal
2 cups boiling water
egg, beaten.
2 tsp. salt
1 tbsp. melted butter
1 cup milk
2 tsp. baking powder
2 tsp. glycerine
Pour boiling water over corn meal. Stir and let cool. Then add the beaten egg and the milk. Mix thoroughly. Stir in salt, baking powder and melted butter and glycerine. Bake in greased pan at 400 deg. F. for 25 minutes. Cool.

PART II

1 egg
2 tsp. salt
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup milk
2 large onions, or more
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup butter
 $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. pepper
2 tsp. glycerine
1 tsp. thyme
1 tsp. sage
Crumble the bread. Cook onion in butter five minutes. Add to bread. Add beaten egg and all other ingredients.

APPLE DRESSING

4 cups soft bread crumbs
1 large onion, chopped fine
1 tsp. salt
 $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. poultry seasoning, or sage or marjoram, or thyme

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup butter, melted
2 tsp. glycerine
1 cup finely chopped tart apple
Add seasoning and onion to the bread crumbs. Melt butter and pour over this, turning to coat crumbs thoroughly. Mix glycerine with chopped apples and combine with crumb mixture. This recipe uses crumbly variety of dressing, no liquid and therefore is the

Write Individual Thanks

DEAR MRS. BECKMAN:

When writing a thank-you note for a wedding gift received from four men in the office—all of whom are department heads—would it be proper to write one letter to Messrs. (listing the four names) and address the envelope to the one highest in rank, or would it be more correct to write individual notes to each one?

The fact that the four men in question are all my superiors makes me want to be sure to avoid any form that might be termed personal.

2. When sending out announcements to the office, would it be proper to send one announcement addressed to the firm to be passed to the various department heads, or would it be more correct to send individual announcements to the homes, addressed to Mr. and Mrs.?

1. By all means write individual thank-you notes to each of these department heads. A thank you note should have a definitely personal touch. The sending of a gift, even if it is a gift from a group, naturally has a personal touch, and sending one thank-you note to a group gives an unattractive and impersonal touch which is to be avoided. The notes need not be too much on the informal side, neither should they be too impersonal.

2. Marriage announcements are of such a formal and conventional nature that every detail of the sending of them should be carried out in a strictly formal and conventional way. Send announcements to each Mr. and Mrs. addressed to their home—not one blanket announcement covering the office personnel.

Love and Marriage

Remember: Son's First!

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am thinking of leaving my husband. While I was ill in bed, he went out and played cards all night. Instead of being at home with me. I think if he really loves me he would not have treated me in this way.

We've been married four years and have a baby son of two. I must say he gives me plenty of money for the house and myself. But I have lost all feeling for him. He won't even talk things over with me.

I know that I can get a position and make enough money to take care of my baby. But I want an outsider's view on this question. Will you please help me?

MRS. W. S.

When a woman considers breaking up her home, there is one question she should ask herself and manage to leave her hurt feelings very much out of the question. You have a baby of two. You say you would be capable of getting a job and taking care of him. But how would the child be cared for all day, when you are away from home.

Sometimes husbands appear brutally indifferent, while 'way down deep in their hearts they really care for their wives but take them too much for granted. If your husband loves his little son, better consider long and playfully before you break up the home in which the little boy is growing up.

Cash for School

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Through one of my friends I met a very charming girl and promptly fell in love with her. I have been attending a night school where I am studying engineering, and it takes about all my spare money to pay for my tuition. I've even had to skip an occasional meal. That's the reason I can't ask this lovely girl to be my girl friend. Do you think I ought to explain my circumstances to her?

BILL.

Some boys living on the narrow eat margins today will be holding down the big jobs of tomorrow. A boy who has sufficient character to keep on with his school work, even when he has to "skip an occasional meal," stands a pretty good chance of becoming a successful man. It seems to me that this girl would be glad to have you for a boy friend, if she's worthwhile.

Smart Set Fashions

Here's Sarong Drape

THIS IS a significant new spring dress... the draping is concentrated at the front, resulting in a slim, unbroken silhouette... and the drape is plainly inspired by the sarong! Awfully smart is the small, rolled-back collar encrusted with scrolling of heavy lace edges, repeated on the good-looking brace-let length sleeves. It's a dull crepe of Eastman acetate rayon. Self-covered buttons neatly and quietly allow emphasis to be focused on the beautiful drape and the lace details. Boston specialty shops feature this type of frock now.—ANNICE BRINK.

Minnevitich's Wizards Do Harmonica Magic

Rascals all, Borrah Minnevitich and his boys get out their harmonicas again and make music and merriment at the RKO Boston, where they head the new vaudeville show. They'll play anything from the "Pique Dame" overture to "Oh, Johnny," for you, and every one a bit of a masterpiece. The opening crowd went overboard for Borrah and his boys, who turned out some neat arrangements of the Bugle Call Rag, "Here I Go," and other favorites, and gathered in plenty of laughs with the antics of Johnny Puleo, the littlest rascal of the nine.

The cute Harrison Sisters, whom you have heard harmonizing over your loud speakers, are just as nice to see as to hear. "You're the One," "Ferry Boat Serenade" and the Hawaiian War Chant are their numbers, and cleverly put across, too.

Bert Walton serves as the show's m. c., and has the boys and girls holding their sides in his own daffy comedy bit with the pale-face stooge.

Another lad in the show-stopping lineup is Peg Leg Bates, who can tap more and better with just one leg and a crutch than most anybody with two good legs. The lucky boy got a terrific hand at the opening. Clem Billings and his French poodles, the smartest canine actors on the boards, are another popular act.

"You're Out of Luck," comedy mystery film, has Frankie Darro as a young elevator boy who gets mixed up in a couple of murders. The other screen attraction is "Misbehaving Husbands," with Harry Langdon in the star role.

Change in Schedule at M & P Strand

Starting Monday and continuing through Friday every week thereafter, the M. & P. Strand Theater, Uphams Corner, will commence its first evening show at 6:45 p. m. The final complete evening show is scheduled to start at 8:10 p. m.

RUSSEL CROUSE, co-author with Howard Lindsay of the comedy success, "Life With Father," is also co-producer with Lindsay of the newest Broadway hit, "Arsenic and Old Lace."

Hit Play Authors Find Way to Thank Friends

Two of the busiest gentlemen in America these days are Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse, co-authors of "Life With Father," three companies of which are turning away customers in New York, Chicago and at Boston's Civic Repertory Theater.

Messrs. Lindsay and Crouse are currently weathering the storm of praise that recently greeted their first venture on Broadway as producers, the play in question being "Arsenic and Old Lace," the newest and funniest comedy of the season.

Helpless before the deluge of congratulatory wires at their opening night, they are acknowledging their friends' good wishes by a printed form listing various contingencies. This masterpiece of foresight and urbanity reads like this:

Howard Lindsay and Russell Crouse
Thank you for

Then follows a long list of items, ranging from "Your kind expression of sympathy," "Returning that loan" to "The buggy ride" and "Everything."

One of these missives, recently received by Charles Hanson Towne, who plays the befuddled clergyman of "Life With Father" in Boston, had the following items checked off in ink:

Your valued contribution.
Mr. Towne was, before his theatrical debut, editor of several ragmags of national circulation.

Warners Purchase 'Old Acquaintance'

Warners have purchased the John van Druten comedy hit, "Old Acquaintance," co-starring Jane Cowl and Peggy Wood currently on Broadway, for $75,000.

The cast of the Dwight Deere Winman production are to be entertained by President and Mrs. Roosevelt at a supper in the White House after the completion of the "command performance" at the National Theater in Washington, D. C., on Sunday evening.

BLONDIE

The Little Woman Does Some Polishing

DUFFIELD lived in New York between jobs but jobs were frequent and the city he called his home might see him from a week to a month out of every year. Never longer. The rest of his time was spent in far places where the government was laying out large plats to take care of some big scale manufacturing.

Duffield, in his politer and upper case moments, was a construction engineer, partner of Edward Brise in Brise & Duffield. They were the tops in their field and millionaires. But you'd never know it to look at Duffield.

He was a very large—not fat, large—man with red hair and a back of a nose. He never talked. He hellowed. He never argued. He fought. Hearing him or watching him, you might think he was a self-made man with a lot of re-painting to do on the job. It might bowl you over to hear he was a graduate of M. I. T. He collected Cellini's more exquisite works. He admired Benvenuto.

A STRONG MAN

There was rejoicing among the sandhogs who lived or had their origins in New York, when they heard that Brise & Duffield had won the contract to dig the Harlem Tunnel. That meant they had two jobs in the city for they were building the new subway too. That, in turn, meant that Duffield would be in New York, his home town, for a year, maybe two. The news got around. It went from coast to coast, from Canada to Mexico, wherever sandhogs, bridge men, iron workers, construction men of any kind foregathered. Soon there was an influx into the metropolis of strong men with laughing eyes and hard mouths. They'd come to look up Duffield for jobs.

He held audiences in the unlikeliest places, favoring night clubs where, in between dinner and show time, he might interview a dozen applicants for jobs ranging from superintendent of construction to ordinary caisson men. His favorite among the night spots was the Swinging Door because Pete Antruss, who ran it, had once thrown rivets for him. The Swinging Door was a good place, not swanky but not low level, either.

Duffield held forth at the bar, doing something he'd fire a man for, drinking to what in other men would be excess. But eight or nine highballs merely gave him an appetite. He was standing there one night, drinking his fifth when a square-built giant loomed in the doorway and cast his ice-blue eyes around the room. They lit on Duffield and he walked over to the bar.

"What'll it be, Duff?" he asked. "Who's buying?" Duffield asked over the rim of his glass as he looked at his proposed host in the mirror.

"I am," the husky told him, "I'm wanting a job and you're giving it out—maybe, it's a bribe." "Bouchon," Duffield told the bartender and turned to the husky, "and I'll bribe you right back, John. When did you get in and from where?"

"Seattle," said John Enright, "What are the chances?"

"I don't know," Duffield told him thoughtfully. "I'm waiting for a fellow. Invited him to dinner with the wife. His eyes began to laugh. 'Maybe you've met him. In fact, I'm sure you have.' His eyes caught sight of a mirrored giant walking in. He was a double in build for the men beside him. Shoulder width for shoulder width, small waist for small waist. 'Pat,' Duffield called, 'Over here.'"

Pat Wright shook hands with him and looked at John Enright. "It's," he said, "What'll it be?"

"Over to the table," Duffield ordered. "Where is it, Captain?" The three of them followed him to a table at the ring side. Duffield motioned his guests into two vacant chairs.

"I suppose," Pat said to John, "you're after a super's job."

"Right," John Enright admitted. "I knew it," Pat nodded, "we're always after the same thing."

"And one of us gets it," John Enright told him, "and no hard feelings. Except on that One, You know. It's still unfinished business."

"Right," Pat agreed, "any time. He's a good man, Mr. Duffield, as you should know. If I don't get it, he gets it and vice versa."

"When did that unfinished business start?" he asked. John and Pat looked questioningly at each other. John nodded. "You start it," he said. "I'll come in from time to time. It's a story it takes two to tell."

ONE GIRL, TWO MEN

"We were working for you," Pat began, "on that suspension bridge in Cohuilla. Six years ago. Remember?"

"Well," Duffield said, "we got a bonus on that bridge. Finished it three weeks ahead of schedule. There was a girl down there, Juanita Estrada, daughter of the mayor. Beautiful dancer. Looked like Renee Marco. Oh, Juanita."

"You know the story?" Pat asked.

"I knew the girl."

"This is the story," Pat pointed out. "Enright, here, and I were rooming together. We shared a room with tarantulas, black widow spiders and fleas. You remember there was social life there of a higher type. The Mexicans liked the Americans. The mayor insisted that you bring some of your most trusted men. I met Juanita there."

"I met Juanita there," John Enright entered.

"I already had declared myself," Pat said patiently. "She knew what I thought of her when you got there. I'd told her. I took her out on a balcony and I told her I'd seen beautiful women in every country thing is that both of us got the idea that each of the man Juanita eventually would marry. Maybe the wish was father to the thought. Anyway, we remembered what they say about everything is fair in love and war and we acted on it."

"You did," John corrected. "Remember the time you told her that my father had spent 10 years in prison for robbing a bank?"

"And remember," Pat corrected, "when you told her that my father

"Well, it's never too late," Enright reminded him. "Mr. Duffield, have they a private room here?"

A FRIENDLY BOUT

Duffield called Pete Antruss, the proprietor, and explained the situation. Pete understood, being an old construction man himself. He and two waiters cleared a room on the third floor of its furniture and came back and told them everything was ready. As they looked questioningly at Duffield, he sorrowfully shook his head.

"I'd like to see it," he grieved, "but if I'm not here when the Missus arrives she'll give me a—"

So the two went up into the cleared room. They fought for 20 minutes to the great delight of Antruss, who got homesick for the old life. Enright finally caught Pat with a lucky punch and Pat went out cold. When he came to, they washed up and came back to the table.

"It was just a lucky one, Pat," Enright sympathized. "You ought to carry your guard higher."

Pat didn't answer him. He was looking at the Duffield able. He said:

"Look!"

Enright looked and they both hurried to the table.

"Boys!" the gorgeous creature with Duffield said in a whispered scream, "Hon and Pat! I am so delighted to see you!" She gave each a little hand and they bowed over it like two battered cavaliers.

"Mrs. Duffield," Duffield explained, "I married her as soon as you left. John, you take over the tunnel job. Pat, I'll put you in charge of the subway."

Mr. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

THE DECISION of Art Ross and Weston W. Adams, made several years ago, to place emphasis on youth is the real reason behind the sensational success of the Bruins in their last twelve games which they have come through undefeated. It was youth that carried the Bruins to such great hockey heights last season.

Cooney Weiland, for several years a member of Ross' brain trust, was among the first to accept the youth movement. As coach of the Bruins, he has been eager to use his youthful players in the tough spots in crucial games.

Frankie Brimsek, young goal tender, and Herbie Cain, recently recalled from the Hershey farm club, carried the torch for the Bruins as they went into second place in the National Hockey League by virtue of their victory over the Rangers in an overtime game. You may look to see Brimsek and Cain taking important parts in future Bruins' victories.

Veterans like "Dit" Clapper have shown a disposition to co-operate 100 per cent with the young players. They realize that modern hockey, the fastest indoor game in the world and I am not forgetting the Cuban game of hi-li, requires the terrific punch and drive that can only be furnished by young players.

Ross has always been willing to risk his reputation on those rookies he believes possess big league possibilities. The fact a player has been sent to Hershey or to some other minor league club for additional experience does not cause Ross to lose full confidence in him.

This was proved in the case of Cain who was brought back home from Hershey to play against the Rangers. It was Cain's brilliance on the attack plus Brimsek's defensive skill that enabled the Bruins to tie the Rangers and then go on to win in overtime.

Ross Took Brimsek Over Tiny Thompson

WHEN TINY THOMPSON was with the Bruins, he always didn't agree with Ross in the matter of hockey play. Following a Stanley Cup series, Thompson and Ross had a wide difference of opinion, and Tiny was finally sold to the Detroit Red Wings for a price reputed to be $15,000.

Ross was criticized for his actions, and it was charged at the time that the Bruins without Thompson would prove a failure.

"In Frankie Brimsek, just brought up from the minors, I have a goalie who will do better for the Bruins than did Thompson," said Ross defiantly.

It was believed to be the statement of a man who found himself very much on the defensive and who had to take a stand.

The Boston hockey public was frank in declaring Brimsek could never fill Thompson's place.

"We'll see," shot back Ross. "I am risking my reputation as a judge of hockey players on what Brimsek does. I know the kid will make good and prove one of the greatest goalies in the league. I intend to see that he gets a fair chance to make good."

Brimsek received his opportunity to make good, and he proved a sensation. When Tiny Thompson came to town with Detroit, thousands of fans turned out to watch the battle between the veteran and Brimsek. Tiny played his usual brilliant hockey, and so did Brimsek. As time went on, Brimsek would show to better advantage than his veteran opponent.

The Ross "kid" lines have been spectacular. The most recent one of Terry Reardon, Pat McReavey and Gordon Bruce has laughed at early leads secured by opponents, and has kept traveling at terrific speed until it has gained the necessary winning tallies.

Young Players Snap Out of Slumps Quickly

YOUNG HOCKEY players snap out of slumps quickly. They don't concern themselves so much about what happened last night as they do about what they may do on the ice tonight. Young stars also stand the grind of a hard season better than do the veterans. This is because they have greater recuperative powers.

Following hard fought games, veteran players are frequently obliged to take layoffs or at least let down in their playing in the next contest. A night's sleep and a few extra plasters for their wounds usually send the young players into the next game full of fire.

During the last two years Eddie Shore was with the Bruins, he played well, but he did not take the reckless chances he did when he was younger. This is true of most of the veterans. They know there will always be a tomorrow in hockey, and they want to be able to play when it arrives. Youth only looks to the immediate action.

JOE LOUIS' COUSIN MAKES 'ALL' TEAM

By CLAYTON HEPLER

DETROIT, Jan. 24—He's one of the finest bantams that ever ducked a hook or fought his way out of a clinch. He's a fighter, Irishman, and today he's the Mid-Western Diamond Belt champion at his weight.

He's 17-year-old Lester McGowan, of Buffalo, one of eight who won titles last night at Olympia before 2000 frenzied fans. And he's one of eight who will appear in the National Finals Monday at Boston.

In style he's a dead ringer of Jimmy Slattery, former king of the light-heavyweights and one of the greatest fighters of all time. And he should be, for it was Jimmy Slattery, now living in Buffalo, who helped train this baby faced youngster and who was easily the class of the card.

LOUIS' COUSIN WINS

Still a high school student and fighting the tenth fight of his career, the little gamecock pounded out a decision over Henry Platt, of Pittsburgh, and then came back in the finals to decision John Rivers, of Detroit, in the final.

That was but one of the all-star attractions at the show which found Detroit winning team honors, as usual, with champions in four classes; O'Neill Bell at 147 pounds, Charlie Hayes at 160 pounds, Tom Fleshe at 175 pounds and Alfred Brown, a cousin of Joe Louis, in the heavyweight division.

In the lightweight final, Don Wallentanz, of Milwaukee, showed the most vicious left of the night as he did everything but knock Milton Ashford, of Pittsburgh, and Ashford had decided Princeton Nardone, Detroit, southpaw who is a former National Junior champion.

Bob McQuillan gave Buffalo its second title when he decided the hard going Nicky Wargo, of Pittsburgh.

Coast Boxers See Kitty Foyle And K. C. Games

California's All-America amateur boxing champions, in Boston for Monday night's National All-America show at Boston Garden, will be guests tonight at Keith Memorial Theater where they will see Ginger Rogers in "Kitty Foyle."

Tomorrow night they will be guests of the Knights of Columbus at the Prout games.

Boxing Results

WATERBURY, Ct.—Irish Eddie Down, Waterbury, won the decision over Carl Dell, Oneonta, N. Y. (5).
AKRON, O.—Buddy Knox, Dayton, O., outpointed Dan Merritt, Cleveland, O. (12) (for Ohio heavyweight title).
PHILADELPHIA — Wickey Haragus, Philadelphia, gained the decision over Danny Paul, Philadelphia (8).
PORTLAND, Me.—Eddie McLaughlin, Boston, outpointed Teddy Lowry, Portland (8). Paul Herrick, Portland, kayoed Blond Tiger, Lowell, Mass. (2). Henry Lynch, Boston, defeated Duke Demers, Sanford (8). Leo Latta, Boston, won the award over Jimmy Cook, Rumford (8).

Ross stated before the practice session in the Garden this noon that Red Hamill, defenseman, and Gordon Bruce and Pat McReavey, wingers, would be transferred back to Hershey today and that Flash Hollett, defenseman, and Mel Hill, right winger, would join the Bruins for the Sunday night game in New York with Americans.

KIDS NEED SPEED
Ross stated that Hamill was returning to Hershey because he was still ten pounds overweight due to his early season layoff, and that he would require plenty of hard work to get at playing weight.

Bruce and McReavey, Ross said, had satisfied him by their play, but they were in need of more speed as was Terry Reardon when he first joined the Bruins. Reardon definitely will stick.

The Bruins manager stated that Hollett was being brought back in accordance with a promise made to him by Pres. Weston Adams of the Bruins that he would be given another chance with the Bruins after two weeks at Hershey.

MITCHELL LAUDS HILL
He will play defense for the Bruins on Sunday night against Americans and on Tuesday night next week against Chicago here at the Garden.

Ross said that Hill was being brought back because of the high praise of his play given by Herb Mitchell, Hershey manager. Ross said that on the basis of his performance at Hershey Hill should greatly help the Bruins team.

Florida Bookies Take to Cover

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 24 (AP)—The Herald says some 200 bookmakers closed shop today because of "The Anti-Bookie policy of the newly installed state racing commission."

Sheriff D. C. Coleman was quoted by the newspaper as saying, "I closed them because they should be closed during the racing season."

The Herald said Alex M. Balfe, recently appointed chairman of the commission by Governor Spessard L. Holland, told an inquirer: "We probably did have something to do with it."

Buccs Kid Battery Sign Contracts

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 24 (AP)—Dick Lananah, left-handed pitcher from Washington, D. C., and Catcher Eddie Fernandez of Oakland, Cal., have signed their 1941 contracts, the Pirates announced today. Lananah, 27, won six and lost eight for the Bucs in his first full season of major league baseball last year.

Bond pitched the old Boston National League club to two pennants in 1877 and 1888, shortly after the league was founded.

Tom's record of his playing days makes present day "Iron Man" claims appear anemic. In his heyday he hurled about 100 games in a season, and thought nothing of it. At that stage, a club had a staff if it had two pitchers.

He was born in Brooklyn, where he played baseball from his earliest days. His N. L. start came in 1875 at Hartford. The next year he was signed by Boston, where his life centered from then on.

Mechanic Arts Team Favored To Win Huskies' Track Meet

Mechanic Arts High is favored to be the first Boston team in history to win the title as 446 athletes from 36 schools compete in the 14th annual Northeastern University interscholastic track meet on Saturday at the Boston Garden. Defending champion Lawrence and imposing CHAMPIONS—Henry Olsen, left, and Ralph Sangas are a couple of top notchers from Mechanic Arts whose team will be a favorite to capture Northeastern school meet title tomorrow. Olsen is Regimental 220 indoor and outdoor king and No. 3 man on relay team. Sangas is 220 Regimental indoor Class D champion and also doubles in relays.

Rindge Tech loom as the chief obstacles in the path of the Artisans.

Only four place winners are returning from last year's meet, so the battle for medals should be wide open and several new stars may shine for the first time.

The 1910 holders include a pair of champions and recordholders, Ed Medley of Lawrence in the dash and Jesse Latin, third in the 600, also's available again.

RUNNER-UP T OGRAY

Al Pochowsky of Brockton, who, an third behind Watkins last year, is back for more competition in the 300, while George Kennedy of Cambridge Latin, third in the 600, also's available again.

Kennedy, runner-up to Ennis Gray of LaSalle Military Academy in the recent Eastern Seaboard meet, has been entered for the 300 in the Northeastern classic, however.

All the fields are jammed with good boys, any of whom might swing the meet.

SANBORN IN HURDLES

Among the better hurdlers are Warren Sanborn of Lawrence, Charles Kirkiles of Lowell, William Toomey of Malden, Jerome Lewis of Rindge Tech, and William Gibbs and Vin Yablonski of Worcester Classic.

In addition to Medley, the dash field includes Kirkiles, Bill Green of Malden, Greg Orsini of Medford, Ray Hunting of Newton, and Vin Yablonski of Worcester Classical.

Most of the sprinters also are in the 200, with Al Dunn of Somerville and Pochowsky added to the competitors.

Max West Signs Bees' Contract

The fabulous offers which have been made for Max West haven't yet given the Bees' blond basher an exaggerated opinion of his baseball importance or value.

Last week, Siapike Maxie was sent a contract. Yesterday, the signed document was back in the Hive after a mail trip from Alhambra, Cal. It was the same story last year. MAX accepted original terms with thanks.

That's one reason why Bob Quinn thinks so highly of the coast clouter and continues to turn a deaf ear to offers as high as $50,000 for him.

TED WILLIAMS They'll Do It Every Time FILLS OUT DRAFT SHEET

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 24 (AP) — Ted Williams, slugging Boston Red Sox outfielder, appeared voluntarily before his local draft board here and offered to fill out his Selective Service questionnaire.

"I want to do it up before leaving for training camp," said Williams, who had not yet been notified to fill out the form for classification.

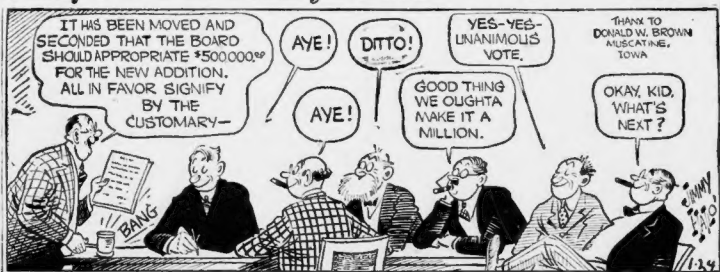

A board official, who assisted the lanky 23-year-old fence buster, said Williams' number is 648 and that it was "unlikely he will be called before the end of the baseball season."

He also intimated Williams may possibly be deferred for being the sole support of his mother.

Williams said he was "willing to serve my country if they want a." He added, however, that he said "like to cash in on another season's salary."

Williams a few days ago was reported to have signed a new contract calling for a salary of $18,000, an increase over last season, today: "signed yet."
